

ROOSEVELT FREEZES JAPANESE ASSETS IN THE UNITED STATES

Japanese Prepare To Counteract Roosevelt's Action

Antagonistic Attitude Is Taken by Press of Japan Over Action of America

Government Displays Both Astonishment and Resentment over United States Government's Stand on Far East; Leaders Are Studying Roosevelt's Remarks on Oil Supply

(By The Associated Press)

TOKYO, July 25.—Japan displayed both astonishment and resentment today over the United States Government's stand on the Far East, and one widely-circulated newspaper called upon the Japanese to be prepared for any action the United States may take regarding the Orient.

Commenting upon President Roosevelt's statement yesterday in which he spoke in the past tense of American reasons for permitting oil shipments to Japan, the newspaper Nichi Nichi forsook the possibility of Washington taking some concrete steps and observed:

Press Is Antagonistic

"Of course Japan cannot anticipate what course President Roosevelt's action will take and therefore she must be prepared. Hitherto the British-American strategy has been to keep Japan on the sidelines in the effort to destroy the Axis powers. It is not certain that this strategy will be followed in the future."

(This comment was published prior to President Roosevelt's disclosure Friday that the United States would take specific action Saturday against Japanese moves in French Indo-China.)

Newspapers generally adopted a more antagonistic attitude toward both Britain and the United States. They printed arguments blaming

Japanese Draw Money from Bank in California

Withdrawals Made before President Roosevelt Froze Japan's Assets

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25 (AP)—Anxious Japanese stood in long-lines at bank windows today, drawing out funds in anticipation of the president's order freezing assets in this country.

The Yokohama Specie Bank, a center of Japanese-American business for the Pacific coast and the country at large, did a land office business—all outgoing. Harried officials and clerks were besieged with questions.

The president's order was received here while business houses still were open although it was after business hours. Its effect was electric, not only in the city's large Japanese colony and Chinatown, but in American importing circles as well.

Banks reported exporters and importers, nervous for many days over the impending blow to their business, appeared almost as fearful over red tape regulations under the licensing procedure as over out-and-out business stoppages.

Will Cut Oil Shipments

An oil company executive said there was no doubt the order meant a complete cutting off of the oil trade, and estimated that Japan had been taking about fifteen per cent of the flow of oil from California alone.

The offices of the Japanese consular general and of Domei, the Japanese news service, hummed with telephone calls from worried business and civic leaders of the Japanese colony. Special concern was voiced over the order that no Japanese ships would be permitted to leave port.

Said one Japanese observer:

"I do not know personally of any Japanese trying to leave the country—not as yet, anyway."

Japanese Will Pour Thousands Of Troops into French Indo-China

Men Will Man Ceded Air, Naval and Military Bases Quickly

(By The Associated Press)

SAIGON, FRENCH INDO-CHINA, July 25.—Japan will swiftly pour thousands of troops with war equipment into newly-won military, naval and air bases in Southern French Indo-China, starting this weekend, usually reliable sources reported tonight.

Maj. Gen. Raishiro Sumita, chief of the Japanese Military Mission in Indo-China, was expected to arrive here tomorrow from Hanoi to direct the operation.

(Foreign sources in Shanghai said they heard from Saigon that Japan would land between 40,000 and 50,000 troops in Indo-China about July 30. Foreign intelligence reports in Shanghai also said that "upwards of 1,000,000 men" were being called to arms in Japan in the greatest mobilization since outbreak of the war with China four years ago.)

(The Japanese News Agency Domei reported in a dispatch from Nanking the Chinese Government at Chungking had ordered troops to proceed to Indo-China's Northern border.)

Japan has won the right to post troops at several coastal points in Southern Indo-China, as well as to station warships in Camranh bay and at Saigon and to establish several air bases in the southern part of the colony, it was reported authoritatively.

All of these positions into which Japan is moving bring her closer to Singapore, Britain's great Far Eastern naval base, British Malaya and the Netherlands East Indies.

Members of the French military staff here departed for Tonkin in the North. Ship traffic from Haiphong, Indo-China's chief northern port, was resumed after cessation for several days.

Both French and Japanese authorities at Hanoi refused to discuss the agreement or to comment on the nature of conversations still going on there between Governor General Admiral Jean Decoux and General Sumita.

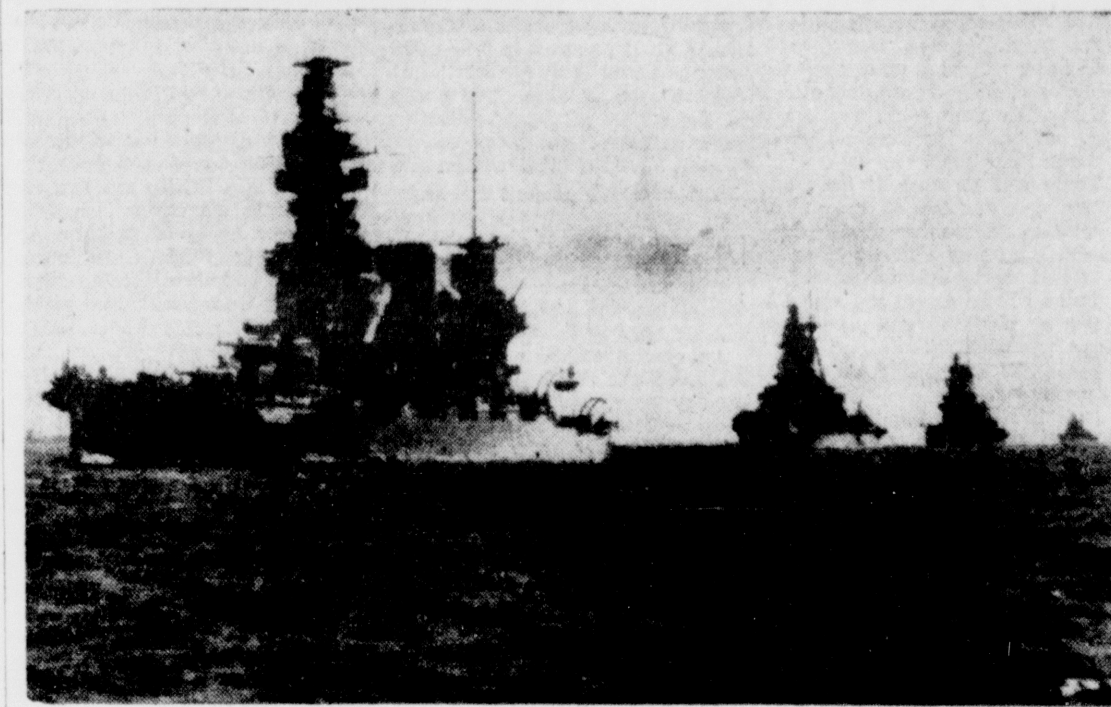

Victory for United States, Russia And Britain Predicted by Shaw

Man Who Says He Is Trying To Die Will Be 85 Years Old Today

By RUSSELL C. LANDSTROM
London, July 25.—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw, who will be eighty-five years old tomorrow, "I am trying to die but I simply cannot do it," he remarked his birthday eve with an interview in which he said that victory in the war "will be a joint affair of Britain, the United States and the U. S. S. R."

The oracle, celebrated for his plays, his wit and his whiskers, declared that "as Russia is now in the front line and likely to be a decisive factor, the peace terms will not be simple as they were at Versailles where, although America

Roosevelt Flays Senator Wheeler In Card Episode

Senate Committee Agrees Informally on Draft Extension Bill

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—President Roosevelt today expressed his disapproval of the action of Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), arch foe of the administration's foreign policy, in mailing post cards to men in the army asking that they actively oppose involvement in the war.

At a press conference in his home at Hyde Park, the chief executive referred to editorials in the New York Herald Tribune and New York Times captioned "On Dangerous Ground" and "Mr. Wheeler Goes Too Far." The captions, he said, covered the situation.

For months, Wheeler on one side, and the president and his aides on the other, have engaged in a running battle in which harsh words have become commonplace.

Smear Campaign Raised
Yesterday Secretary of War Stimson disclosed that the senator had sent postage-free postcards to some army men asking that they write to the president expressing their opposition to American entry into the war. This, said the cabinet officer, was close to the line of subversive activity, if not treason itself.

To this, Wheeler replied that Stimson was in his "second childhood" and "ga-ga." And today the senator contended that Mr. Roosevelt and his secretary of war were conducting a "smear campaign" against himself and Charles A. Lindbergh.

"Secretary Stimson tried to give the impression that the postal cards were mailed to the army generally," (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Text of F. D. R's Message Freezing Japanese Assets

HYDE PARK, July 25 (AP)—Here is the text of the freezing order issued tonight by President Roosevelt:

"In view of the unlimited national emergency declared by the president, he has today issued an executive order freezing Japanese assets in the United States in the same manner in which assets of various European countries were frozen on June 14, 1941. This measure, in effect, brings all financial and import and export trade transactions in which Japanese interests are involved under the control of the government and imposes criminal penalties for violation of the order. This executive order, just as the order of June 14, 1941, is designed among other things to prevent the use of the financial facilities of the United States and trade between Japan and the United States in ways harmful to national defense and American interests, to prevent the liquidation in the United States of assets obtained by duress or conquest, and to curb subversive activities in the United States.

"At the specific request of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and for the purpose of helping the Chinese government, the president has, at the same time, extended the freezing control to Chinese assets in the United States. The administration of the licensing system with respect to Chinese assets will be conducted with a view to strengthening the foreign trade and exchange position of the Chinese government. The inclusion of China in the executive order, in accordance with the wishes of the Chinese government, is a continuation of this government's policy of assisting China."

National Defense Will Require More Money, Batt Says

Reason We Are Not at War because No One Has Cared To Attack Us

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 25 (AP)—William L. Batt, of Philadelphia, deputy director of the office of production management, asserted today that the "only reason we are not at war is because none of those on the other side have chosen to declare war on us."

"They have had a number of opportunities," he added in addressing a defense meeting of state, city, county and industrial leaders in the state house.

Batt said that when the Nazis came into power, Germany was spending twenty-five per cent of its national income for war preparations. In 1939 Germany spent fifty per cent of its income for this purpose, compared to one per cent of national income expended in the same year by the United States, he added.

America's defense expenditures have grown to a billion a month, he declared, adding that next year expenditures would be approximately two billion a month.

Should Be More
"Personally I don't think that is enough in view of the direction in which we are heading," he continued.

"We are entering a new phase of defense production. The time has come when most of the slack in our ordinary way of living" has been taken up in materials, equipment and skilled labor. xxx The pinch is beginning to be seriously felt."

Batt said "sacrifices must be made in our ordinary way of living" to insure a smooth flow of materials from defense industries.

Nazi Staff Admits Stiff Resistance In Red Campaign

United States Is Accused of Imperial Aspirations in Far East

(By The Associated Press)
BERLIN, July 25.—Germany's political leaders watched the Far East intently today, accusing the United States of "imperialistic aspirations" there, while the high command's only announcement of the Russian war front again spoke of operations proceeding "according to plan" against stiff resistance in some areas.

Although the official war bulletin was general it was reported that "a large number of prisoners and war material are being captured daily."

A military spokesman declared that in the Far Northern theater, Germany's Finnish allies had forced a passage between Lakes Ladoga and Onega and were menacing the Murmansk-Leningrad Railway (presumably in the Petrozavodsk sector, where the Russians themselves reported heavy fighting).

He added that German forces also were progressing steadily on both sides of the Peipus and Imlen lakes toward Leningrad.

News dispatches stated that 10,000 Red prisoners, more than 100 cannon and other war material had been taken in the vicinity of Mogilev along the central front, where it was declared that Soviet units were being encircled. The dead there it was added, far exceeded the number of captives in hand.

Describing ground operations in extremely deep combat zones, a German war reporter wrote that fighting in the woods especially "is dangerous and attended by big losses."

The Luftwaffe said that twenty-

Russian Positions Remain Unchanged After Renewal of German Offensive

Fourth Successive Aerial Assault on Moscow Fails To Penetrate Red Anti-aircraft Defenses

MOSCOW, Saturday, July 26 (AP)—The Soviet Information Bureau communique issued early today said that the fighting continued in the Prokhor, Polotsk-Nevel, Smolensk and Zhitomir sectors, thus indicating no major change on the battle fronts.

The communique said the Rumanian port of Constanta had been bombed by the Soviet air force. It reported also that thirty-four German planes had been brought down Thursday.

Russian resistance at the front was matched here by cool civilian reaction to Nazi night air attacks.

For it was stated officially, the fourth successive aerial assault upon this capital—delivered in two sections during last night and early today—was a greater failure than any that had come before. Only a single raider was able to break through the city's defenses, it was declared, and that lone attacker was shot down, along with another destroyed outside of Moscow.

Fighting afield, as reported during the day by the Soviet command's afternoon communique, was still far-spread but not a single new battle area was mentioned.

Specifically reported was heavy action not only at the Russian center, about Polotsk-Nevel-Smolensk triangle, below Leningrad about Porkhov and in the Ukraine about Zhitomir, but on the far Finnish front in the Petrozavodsk sector north of Lake Ladoga.

All this was covered by the Red general staff only with the accustomed remark that the fighting was "stubborn."

Again, the continuing offensive activity of the Red air fleet against German mechanized columns and airmen was stressed.

Official accounts made it appear that guerrilla fighting was spreading far beyond the Nazi lines and the scouts using the ancient advantage of familiar terrain were causing the invaders many a local disaster.

For example, a guerrilla party operating near a village identified as "N" was said to have launched a dawn surprise attack on the Germans. A large Nazi force was enticed into a bog; it was added, and there substantially annihilated.

These roaming guerrillas, possessed of a greater mobility than any regular unit, are armed with machine-guns, automatics, hand grenades and in some cases with anti-tank guns.

Russian accounts of general fighting in every important theater were supported by military information available in London, which was to the effect that there had been a measurable, though slight, renewal of the German offensive all along the front. Nothing decisive was reported anywhere, however.

Nina Wilcox Putnam Says 'Fat-Ugly' Women Should Be Punished by Law

Can Be Attractive, No Matter What Age, If Not Too Lazy, She Says

By STEVEN WILLIAMS
NEW YORK, July 25 (AP)—Women who allow themselves to grow unattractively obese, says Nina Wilcox Putnam, should be punished by law.

"Women, no matter what age can be attractive—if they're not too lazy," the author of 1,200 pieces of fiction, about 1,000 magazine articles and twenty-eight books said today.

"It is offensive to see a fat-lazy woman in public and there should be a law against it," she said. "Take Turkey. There they are punished if they get too fat. That idea

Swift Retaliation Taken Against Japan for Action In French Indo-China Area

Includes Nippon's Ships and Similarly Ties Up Chinese Assets So Axis Cannot Get Them; Move Made To Prevent Financial Facilities and Trade Which Would Be Harmful to National Interests

By IRVING PERLMUTER

WASHINGTON, July 25. (AP)—President Roosevelt struck back tonight against Japan for her push in French Indo-China by clamping a sweeping control over all economic intercourse between the United States and Japan, including cash, oil, ships, silk and other assets.

At the same time, at the request of China, he tied up Chinese assets in this country so that no one but the beleaguered government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek can use them.

Hereafter, a treasury license will be needed to take any Japanese assets outside the country or to send anything to Japan. This meant, according to a treasury spokesman, that oil can be kept from Japan's war machine by refusal of or even failure to act upon requests for permission to ship oil.

Whether such an embargo actually would be clamped down, however, remained to be seen. The asset "freezing" order put the treasury in a position to turn the economic screws on Japan. Just how hard they will be applied may depend, to some extent, on future events in the Far East.

The sweeping presidential order, besides its ramifications in the field of high international policy, may have a marked effect on common folk both in the United States and Japan.

For example, it may eventually mean that American women will have to do without silk stockings, except for substitutes like nylon, the supply of which is inadequate. It may affect the Japanese curd shop down the street. Anything connected with Japan is involved to some extent.

Edward H. Foley, Jr., general counsel and acting secretary of the treasury, said that tonight's order, technically, froze the title to Japanese ships in American harbors but did not mean seizure of vessels. However, under other provisions, they cannot leave without treasury permission.

Freezes All Trade
Foley said the order "freezes all trade" between the two countries, except as it is permitted by specific treasury licenses. Administration policy is granting such licenses, especially in the case of oil, he said, will be determined by a committee composed of himself as treasury representative; Dean Acheson, assistant secretary of state, and Francis Shea, assistant attorney general.

The result of this procedure, he added, "necessarily will have a restraining effect on trade."

He explained that in the case of supplementary orders have been issued which immobilize them except as the owners are willing to place them at the disposal of the Nationalist Government of China at Chungking or the Central Bank of China. The government and the bank were given complete freedom of action, as if the order never had been issued. This meant that no

LONDON, Saturday, July 26. (AP)—Great Britain froze assets and credits of Japan in the British Empire today in parallel action with the United States.

Informed sources said the action was the first of its kind by Britain against "a country which neither is a declared enemy nor occupied or controlled by a declared enemy."

The order is effective today. The official press notice said: "Treasury directions have been given to bankers under defense regulation 2a prohibiting as from today, July 26, the carrying out of orders affecting Japanese balances in gold and securities in the United Kingdom without license from the treasury. Corresponding action is being arranged in other parts of the empire."

Informed sources here declined to estimate the amount of Japanese assets affected, but it was suggested they were substantial, especially in Far-Eastern colonies and in Australia.

Comment was withheld whether still further drastic actions were contemplated by Britain alone or by collaboration with the United States as a concrete demonstration of opposition to further Japanese penetration in French Indo-China or elsewhere in the Orient.

There also was the question, on which informed sources declined comment, whether Britain was prepared to take steps shutting off trade with Indo-China.

It was recalled that Syria was declared "enemy-occupied territory" long before the British began fighting their way into that country against the Vichy forces. But sources here explained, "that was because the Germans started to occupy the country's airfield and the Germans are our avowed enemies."

For the woman who can afford it, she prescribed attention by a beauty cultist for others, "except if they get too fat. That idea

Russian Fighting Wins Admiration Of Nazi Reporters

Vicious Hand-to-Hand Action Characterizes Red Army Resistance

BERLIN, July 25. (AP)—German soldier-reporters at the front tonight told of vicious hand-to-hand fighting with Russian troops entrenched in the Stalin line and said that Red Army warriors were "stubborn unto death."

"Often they had to be slain in their rifle pits," one dispatch said in telling of German infantry storming the Red positions. Russian counter-attacks also were acknowledged and at times Nazi artillery was "firing point blank at a distance of 100 yards" against the charging soldiers of the Red Star.

The high command's only announcement of the Russian war front spoke of operations proceeding "according to plan" and reported "a large number of prisoners and war material are being captured daily."

In two villages in the Stalin line region the Russians first attacked the Germans, one soldier-reporter said.

"The artillery was hard pressed. Firing point-blank at a distance of 100 to 150 yards, the artillery was able to hold off the Russians."

"Then the German infantry advanced. . . . Horrible close fighting developed in the early morning light. The attacking soldiers in field gray and the Soviets, desperately defending themselves, faced one another at two yards. The Soviets suffered terrific losses."

Then he described the difficulties in storming the Russian fortifications.

"Suited to the wooded, hilly and cleverly camouflaged with cut stalks of grain, trenches and machine-gun nests dotted the terrain. One position was connected with the other. Often there were four or five behind one another and full of Soviets."

A furious fire broke loose against the storming Germans. The battalion broke through the wood, but only after bloody fighting.

The Soviets resisted tenaciously. Stubbornly they stuck to their posts—stubborn unto death. Even in the hopeless situation they kept their weapons and often had to be slain in their rifle pits."

way. And the business houses say they will remain open as long as they can."

Liner Due Today

From some forty Japanese vessels said to be hovering at sea awaiting developments before venturing into American ports, there was no word except from the Japanese luxury liner Tatsumaru, which informed its office in port it would be in tomorrow at 5 a. m., with its $2,500,000 cargo of silk.

The message was sent, however, before President Roosevelt froze Japanese assets in this country, and NYK line officials were unable to say immediately whether the new development would change Tatsumaru's plans.

The liner, carrying 247 passengers, originally was due at 5 a. m. Thursday. It came almost within sight of the mainland, but late today was understood to have proceeded more than 200 miles out to sea before again turning Eastward.

Initial reports indicated that Japan was hesitating to place the Tatsumaru's silk cargo in American ports where an order to freeze Japanese credits might be applicable. The 5,888 bales will be placed in twenty freight cars destined for mills in New Jersey.

The ship, skippered by Capt. T. Takahata, carries a crew of 280.

cise, proper dieting and cleanliness, with emphasis on cleanliness.

Miss Putnam was born in New Haven, Conn. Her father was the late Marion Wilcox, editor of Harper's Weekly and of an encyclopedia, and was for a time a Philadelphia journalist.

She never attended school, she said, but could read and write at six. When she was very young she lived in England and has made sixty-eight transatlantic crossings since.

Romance visited her early, but how early could not be established. Her first husband was Robert Putnam, brother of George Putnam, whose wife, Amelia Earhart, disappeared on a Pacific flight.

Married Several Times

She married Putnam so long ago, she said, she forgot the date. He died during the influenza epidemic in 1918, leaving her with a son, John Francis, now seriously ill in Asheville, N. C.

In 1919, she married John Sanderson, a telephone company official. They were divorced four years later.

Following that she married Philip Eliot, an English architect, heir to the Earldom of St. Germain. In 1931 they were divorced and she married Arthur Ogle, a builder.

"The best part of it," she laughed, "is this. After I was divorced from Mr. Ogle, I remarried Mr. Eliot, my present husband."

But she prefers to be known as Miss Putnam.

WHERE JAPANESE MAY MOVE

This closeup map of the waters around Indo-China indicates how the occupation of Camranh bay would give the Japanese a base within a few hours flying distance of the British strongholds of Singapore and Hongkong and the American base at Manila, as well as the Dutch East Indies and Chinese communication lines through Burma. Japan, denounced by the United States as an aggressor in Indo-China, also has directed its attention to Thailand.

FREEZING JAPANESE ASSETS TO CUT SILK STOCKING PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON, July 25. (AP)—There may be many more bare-legged women in the United States as a result of the government's action in freezing Japan's assets.

The bare facts are these: silk comes from Japan, and it was considered possible that trade between the two countries would be hard hit because of the difficulty of making payments.

There is only about two and a half months supply of silk in the United States. Nylon production this year, at best, would fill only about one-eighth of the requirements for stocking production, according to experts, and the nylon might be needed for parachutes and other military purposes, at that.

The Commerce department said that last year's silk stocking production in this country was about 44,000,000 dozen pairs, while output of nylon stockings in the first five months of this year was 2,995,000. Nylon production has been expanding rapidly, however, and the five-month figure for this year was slightly larger than the total for all of 1940.

The experts had one other thought. There's no law against wearing cotton.

clash between Plutocracy and Socialism

Stalin to Have Edge

"Stalin will have the advantage of thoroughly understanding the position whereas the Plutocrats talk about Socialism and Communism and liberty and democracy without knowing what they are talking about, just following the slot of money and power as a hound follows the slot of a fox."

"Webster's new International dictionary: 'Slot, in the track of a deer; hence any track or trail.'"

"That will be the situation," he declared, but "I can say nothing about it except as I am not a prophet, nor even a tipster."

Asked whether he thinks the war is seriously hampering developments of the arts, particularly literature, Shaw replied, "war hampers everything except the application of science to the arts of slaughter and destruction. But in doing so it produces results that are entirely unexpected and unintended."

"In the four years' World war I overthrew four apparently everlasting empires (German, Austro-Hungarian, Russian and Ottoman) and the present war has thrown Plutocratic England and America into the arms of Communist Russia. Not what the warmakers intended, is it?"

Seems To Keep Zest

Shaw is passing the mid-summer days at his beautiful country home in Ayot St. Lawrence, Hertfordshire, meditating in his sardonic way and occasionally contributing to the press a letter expressing his views on the aspects of the war.

Actually Shaw seems to keep his zest for living and is interested in such a normal homely thing as kitchen gardening.

He's been in and out of the news quite a lot since the war broke out—contrary to his public utterances of 1939 when the frequently scoffed at alarms.

From the beginning he has felt that the bombing of great cities is senseless but at one time he said if London were bombed "why not Rome?"

An appreciable body of critical opinion is inclined to think that Shaw has petered out as a playwright but the criticism, whatever the source, doesn't ruffle Shaw. The fault, he holds, lies not with him but with those failing to understand him and his ideas.

Wheeler told a press conference. "There is not a word of truth in that. Out of more than a million cars, the War department found two that had gone to army camps. Stimson's actions emulate those of Hitler."

"The cards were sent to persons on a commercial mailing list, and I'll venture to say that not more than 100 reached army men."

Wheeler said that "it would be wrong for anyone deliberately to set out to propagandize the army," but added that there was nothing wrong with sending postcards to a cross-section of the population.

The point stressed by administration men is that long-standing army regulations forbid soldiers to engage in any activities intended to influence legislation.

Committee Reaches Agreement

The question was raised earlier in the week by General George C. Marshall, the army chief of staff, who charged that outside interests were endeavoring to have drafted actively opposing pending legislation to make their term of active service indefinite instead of terminating at the end of twelve months.

Today members of the Senate Military committee were reported to have agreed informally on a resolution which would declare a limited emergency and thus permit the president to hold draftees, national guardsmen and reserves in service.

Senator Lee (D-Ola.), a committee member, said the resolution also would permit the government to hold members of the regular army in service beyond their three-year enlistment period. He predicted, however, that the measure would not lift present prohibitions on sending selectees, guardsmen and reserves outside the western hemisphere.

Reckord Favors Extension

At hearings before the House Military committee Major General Milton A. Reckord testified that ninety per cent of the men and all the officers of the Twenty-ninth Division, which he commands, favored the extended period of service.

"Frankly," he said, "I think the need exists."

The nation was in great peril, in his opinion, and the best course was a declaration of emergency by Congress.

"Don't tie the hands of the War department in this situation," he said, adding that people should "stop writing foolish letters" on the issue.

In all, Wheeler sent out a million post cards under a senator's prerogative of free use of the mails. The cards were printed at the government printing office and paid for, he said, by the America First Committee. They went to a cross section of the population, he said.

Senator Van Nuys (D-Ind.) put in a word for Wheeler on the subject, asserting that Stimson had been "wholly unfair," and adding:

"While we all may not agree with Senator Wheeler's views on foreign policy, none should doubt his sincerity, his integrity or his patriotism."

In addition to his comments on the Wheeler postcards, Mr. Roosevelt at today's press conference said he had word from Harry L. Hopkins, in England, that the lend-lease program was going all right.

Hopkins, as co-ordinator for the program, is consulting various British officials and departments on the problems of American aid.

"The president also said that the office of production management and the price control administration have the same objective in the proposed curtailment of automobile production. Both want a gradual switch to the production of war goods," he explained, but the price control office favors a more rapid pace in making the transition than OPM. The disagreement will be worked out, shortly, he added.

County Fair Will Be Revived in New York City

Gentlemen Farmers To Stage Event for First Time Since 1897

NEW YORK, July 25. (AP)—New York City's millionaire farmers—those weekend agriculturists who peddle bonds down in Wall street and sell eggs on the side—are going to have a county fair right in the middle of this towering town.

From Sept. 10 to 20, the gentlemen farmers and sundry others are going to pack Madison Square Garden with everything from pigs to pickles, thus reviving New York's 113-year-old county fair, last held in 1897.

The exposition will be sponsored by the American Institute of the City of New York, which was chartered in 1828 to operate the fair for the farmers of Manhattan Island and thereabouts.

There are still some farms nearby and even in the city—the Rockefellerers for instance, have a farm on a radio city terrace eleven stories above Fifth avenue.

Dr. H. H. Sheldon, fair director, says there will be a midway in the finest and nicest—tradition with a "great show with color, music and fun" but minus the old shell games and the strip tease.

There will be rows of jams and jellies, pies, and lots of flowers and vegetables and poultry will be shipped in from New York's Long Island and nearby upstate farms.

There will be a real silo and displays of modern farm and farm home equipment.

Exhibitors will complete for $3,000 in premiums.

It is likely that the farmers will go after some of those blue ribbons and some of that five grand. The Rockefeller Center farms issued a crop report today saying there would be a fine yield of onions, cabbages, tomatoes, etc., etc. And that their apple and peach orchard was coming along nicely, too.

CANADA TO HOLD JAPANESE ASSETS

OTTAWA, July 25. (AP)—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King announced tonight that "the necessary steps have been taken to prevent the withdrawal of assets in Canada belonging to residents of Japan."

An official statement, following a similar one from President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N. Y., said that "no financial transactions affecting residents of Japan can be undertaken without specific permission of the Foreign Exchange Control Board."

At the request of the Chiang Kai-shek Government, similar control was established over disposition of assets in Canada or residents of China."

Mackenzie King's announcement said "it is understood that this measure will not disturb existing arrangements for the transfer of patriotic and benevolent remittance by Chinese residents in Canada."

One spokesman said he understood that for all practical purposes the assets in Canada of residents of Japan had been frozen for a week at least. He said he believed that if any Japanese ships were in Canadian ports they would not be allowed to leave.

Moscow Has Air Raid Warning

United States and British economic activities for the disruption of Japanese economy. Although they acknowledged that this disruption was partly due to the spread of war, they tried to show that Anglo-American motives hostile to Japan had played a large part.

The government was understood to be studying closely President Roosevelt's remarks about Japan's oil supply, which were given prominent display on the first pages of Japanese newspapers, and Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles' statement containing blunt references to alleged Japanese aggression.

President Roosevelt's references to Indo-China were deleted from his remarks as published here, and the press carried nothing on the Welles statement, for obvious reasons.

Need Adequate Defense

(The Japanese press is not yet permitted to discuss the Japanese program for military bases in Indo-China.)

In line with the antagonistic attitude toward Britain and Japan, the authoritative Japan Times and Advertiser declared that all of French Indo-China obviously is in need of "adequate defense which will guarantee the integrity of the region."

Japan's commercial rights in Indo-China have been imperiled by the "encirclement of Indo-China by Anglo-American and Chungking interests," the paper said. The "encirclement" it asserted, was in the form of "aerial, naval and military bases extending from India and Burma around to Malaya and the Philippines."

In view of this, the newspaper said, "it is imperative that adequate defense steps be taken by Japan, because if her commercial treaty with Indo-China is menaced, the economic rights of Japan would be in jeopardy."

Mexico Expels General Hurtado Of Nicaragua

Takes Action Because He Urged Nazi Minister To Provide Planes

MEXICO CITY, July 25. (AP)—Informed diplomatic sources said tonight that Mexico had expelled a Nicaraguan political exile because he had urged the German minister here to provide him with planes for a revolution in Nicaragua.

The ministry of the interior was said to have turned over the Nicaraguan, General Roberto Hurtado, to United States authorities at Laredo, Texas, where he was imprisoned pending final disposition of the case.

General Hurtado, a member of Nicaragua's Nazi Party, was said to have written German Minister Rudolf von Colenberg that, "I have enough arms, but I need planes" for a coup against the Managua regime that exiled him several years ago.

One usually well-informed source said there were persistent rumors that crated Messerschmitt fighters had arrived recently in the Caribbean area and it was believed Hurtado referred to these. The rumors of the arrival of the Messerschmitts, reported stored on out-of-the-way islands, have not been confirmed.

The general's request for assistance was said by the diplomatic sources to have been contained in a letter to Von Colenberg, a copy of which was obtained in a raid on Hurtado's home and turned over to the ministry of interior.

An official of the ministry, who acknowledged that Hurtado had been expelled, said he had been deported because "he was carrying on activities here contrary to Mexico's international policy."

The German minister could not be reached for comment on the reports.

Slot Machines Are Broken Up To Aid National Defense

TOWSON, Md., July 25. (AP)—Slot machines are paying off for national defense.

Chief of Police Oscar M. Grimes of Baltimore county has his men breaking up 200 seized slot and pin-ball machines for the aluminum they contain.

Any stray coins found will go into the police pension fund.

National Defense

"This new phase of defense production," he declared, "presents a severe problem, both from the standpoint of our national security and our economic well-being."

He said the problem was being met through the O. P. M.'s defense contract service in distributing the defense load as widely as possible; through the conservation unit in providing substitutes for materials in which shortages have been acute and through voluntary cooperation of citizens.

There is "no reason why our country should not be able to attain the degree of physical security which is our common goal," he declared.

The conferees responded by deciding to send President Roosevelt a telegram pledging loyalty to the nation and to the defense program.

Batt pointed out the defense program was approximately a year old and said "if you consider those factors which were not in our favor, it is rather remarkable what has been accomplished in one short year."

Production Increased

On the credit side, he said the United States a year ago had tremendous wealth in natural resources and tremendous facilities for turning them into weapons of war.

On the debit side, Batt said the United States a year ago was unacquainted with production of war materials and was not equipped to produce them in large quantities.

"Worse than that, we were psychologically unprepared to do the job of war in any form that we found it extremely difficult to put enthusiasm into building the weapons of war," he said.

He said airplanes are being built at a rate of fifty a day—a 500 per cent increase over last year's production—and that 1,500 automatic rifles and sub-machine guns are being manufactured daily. The machine tool industry will do approximately $800,000,000 worth of business this year, compared to $100,000,000 worth of business in 1939.

Governor O'Connor and W. Frank Roberts, state defense council chairman, also spoke.

six Soviet bombers were burned through a lucky hit which exploded a gasoline truck on a Russian air field east of Smolensk.

As to the Far East, German comment uniformly bespoke the deepest solidarity with Japan in her move toward French Indo-China.

President Roosevelt was referred to as "a collector of island bases all over the earth." The newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung caustically called him "world president."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The escape of a German warship from Brest to a French port less than 100 miles away is a serious development fully warranting costly Royal Air Force operations to deal with it.

London reports say the escaped ship, described as the 26,000-ton Battle Cruiser Scharnhorst, has again been struck by bombs in sustained daylight air raids. She now lies at La Pallice, 240 miles southward down the Bay of Biscay—and therefore she is much farther from British air bases than she was at Brest.

The disconcerting fact from the British viewpoint is that despite incessant British bombing at Brest since last March, the ship was repaired and put to sea, presumably at night and under her own power, for the dash to La Pallice.

Sister Ship at Brest

British information indicates that her sister ship, Gneisenau, still at Brest along with the 10,000-ton Cruiser Prinz Eugen, is in worse shape and probably out of action for months. The condition of the cruiser, which was the consort of the ill-fated Nazi Battleship Bismarck and which took refuge at Brest after the sinking of the Bismarck, is not clearly indicated.

In these three fast and powerful surface craft and the uncertain number of other heavy ships still available in German waters, the Nazi high command holds a weapon that could increase British sea losses in the Atlantic. As winter approaches and longer hours of darkness and bad weather combine to render submarine and air attack less effective, roving raids by big and powerful surface fighters would hold a special menace.

Having reached LaPallice, a long step farther for British bombers to go across German occupied territory to strike at her, the Scharnhorst becomes a greater danger than she was at Brest. If she is not quickly put out of commission there, it follows that a redistribution of British battleships and battle cruisers to guard against her escape to sea where she might be refitted without British molestation would be necessary. And any naval craft withdrawn from Atlantic convoy duty to keep watch on the Scharnhorst would impair the convoy system.

Down Fifteen Bombers

That testifies both to the intensity of Nazi anti-aircraft protection, which forced British bombers to high altitude attack, and to the relative ineffectiveness against small targets that form of air attack. There can be small question, however, that British air force orders now call for sustained daylight bombing at the Nazi ships both at Brest and La Pallice.

That means British plane losses as the admitted toll of fifteen bombers and seven fighters missing in the Brest-La Pallice attacks indicates. To offset it somewhat London claimed a dozen German fighters downed.

Whatever the risks or losses, however, the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and to a lesser extent the Prinz Eugen are such important factors in the sea war that they call for every British effort to smash them beyond repair. Until they are, they will remain a deadly threat to Britain's sea line.

money or goods could be sent by Chinese or others to the Japanese-occupied section of China.

Foley explained that for the purposes of the control, Hawaii would be treated about the same as the Continental United States, although "normal" transactions between the Philippine Islands and Japan were permitted. Japanese banks in both places were exempted enough to permit them to receive and pay out deposits within the islands, but he said the exemptions merely put these banks on a par with American banks there and did not permit transactions of any kind that would not be sanctioned in the case of an American bank—such as the sending of money to Japan.

Order Is Explained

A White House statement, issued here and at Hyde Park, explained the freezing order. It said the action was "designed among other things to prevent the use of the financial facilities of the United States and trade between Japan and the United States, in ways harmful to national defense and American interest, to prevent the liquidation in the United States of assets obtained by duress or conquest, and to curb subversive activities in the United States."

Another treasury order exempted "ordinary" trade between the Philippine Islands and China or Japan, but provided that the exemption could not be used to help other blocked countries.

Another group of exemptions applied to certain Hawaiian offices, including branches of some Japanese banks in Hawaii.

Japanese assets in this country, as far as official reports showed, consisted about half of cash and half of securities and other investments. Besides securities in cash, the Japanese have a number of branch offices here belonging to Japanese exporting, cotton, and banking firms.

To Affect Trade

The freezing order also was expected to have severely adverse effect on a large merchandise trade between the two countries, because of the difficulty of making payments.

This trade has been declining the last year, however, as the United States has either shut off or restricted sales of scrap iron, copper, other metals, machine tools and gasoline to Japan.

Before the present war, Japan was the third largest customer in the world for American merchandise, and in 1940 still ranked fourth. Last year's Japanese purchases here totaled $227,200,000, slightly below the average for the last five years. But in the first five months of this year, such purchases slumped to $47,848,000, little more than half the $91,871,000 of the similar period last year.

Despite export controls by this government, principal merchandise moving to Japan so far this year has been petroleum, $11,713,000; copper, $3,966,000; and power-driven metal-working machinery, $1,342,000.

American purchases from Japan last year totaled $158,376,000, which was about average, and have been running near the same rate this year, however, silk is the only item upon which the United States depends from Japan.

Japan was the thirty-first country whose funds have been frozen by the United States. Starting in April of last year, President Roosevelt has frozen the funds of every country in Continental Europe, and their possessions elsewhere in the world, including French Indo-China.

The funds of Russia, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland, however, have been released since the general European order was issued on June 14.

President Acts Quickly

The president, in issuing the freezing order tonight, acted even sooner than expected. He had indicated that the announcement would not be forthcoming until tomorrow.

The president declined at his morning press conference at Hyde Park to expand on his hint yesterday that a full embargo on oil might also be planned—a move which had not been taken in the past because it would tend to force Japan to go south to the Netherlands East Indies for a new supply.

Spending Policies Of New Deal Hit By Republicans

Approve General Objective Of New Tax Bill; File Minority Report

WASHINGTON, July 25. (AP)—Ten Republicans on the House Ways and Means committee tonight endorsed the "general objective" of the new $3,299,200,000 tax bill, but accused the New Deal of "irresponsible spendthrift policies" and demanded a mandatory cut in non-defense spending.

In a minority report, they urged that President Roosevelt take formal action to stress the need for reducing unnecessary expenditures, and also declared there was "much room for economy" in some phases of the huge defense program itself.

"We particularly have in mind," they said, "the extravagance in the construction of cantonments, which has been so rampant as to constitute a national scandal."

Bill Comes Up Soon

The tax bill next and accompanying majority report were to be filed with the house late tonight under a prior agreement permitting this during the weekend adjournment. Since they had to be printed overnight, their publication was withheld until tomorrow.

The bill will come up in the House Tuesday or Wednesday, depending on disposition of a special rule to be sought by Democratic leaders limiting amendments from the floor to those offered by committee members. Republicans have announced they would attack the rule of a "tag." Passage of the bill by Friday is predicted on both sides.

"The measure would impose the heaviest taxes in the nation's history upon both individuals and corporations. It would raise an estimated $1,152,000,000 through a drastic system of individual income surtaxes; $1,332,900,000 from higher corporation excess

Flight Lieutenant Will Tell Story Of the RAF in Radio Broadcast

Variety of Features Will Be Heard on the Networks

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, July 25—A series of four broadcasts in which an unidentified flight lieutenant of the R.A.F. is to tell of his aviation experiences in the war will be presented by NBC-RED at 4:45 p. m. Saturday. The narrator's story will start at his Oxford student days to a hospital cut that ended his combat days for the British air force. He is now attached to the British air commission in this country.

The CBS Country Journal, half hour Saturday feature at 11 a. m., is adding a brief period so that local stations, if they desire, can cut from the network to give their own farm news.

Ecuador is to supply the musical material for Calling Pan-America on CBS at 3 p. m.

Song Feature

Included in the Chicago Hour at 9 a. m. on MBS is the first feature presentation by that network of Kent Cooper's "Dixie Girl." It will be sung by Attilio Baggione, with Henry Weber directing the orchestra.

Discussion: CBS 6 People's Platform, "Longer Draft Training." CBS 9:15 Rep. W. C. Ploeser, of Missouri, on the St. Lawrence seaway.

Horse races: At Empire City track NBC-BLUE, CBS, MBS 3:30; at Arlington Park, MBS 5.

Socialistic Trend Gets Another Check

OPPOSITION led by Republicans to giving President Roosevelt virtually unlimited power to seize private property has resulted in forcing the administration to withdraw its original proposals in this regard and accept a greatly modified measure in its place.

The bill which the Roosevelt administration finally was forced to accept carefully restricts the president's power to seize private property needed for national defense and, in effect, goes no further than is necessary to require recalcitrant industries and individuals to use such property in the national interest on fair and reasonable terms.

In strong contrast, however, was the administration's original proposal, which would have given so broad a grant of power to the president that with the stroke of a pen he could have placed this nation's economic structure under state socialism. It was this measure which drew vigorous protests from the Republican leaders and others.

The fact that the administration can achieve its purpose to deal with recalcitrant industries or individuals impeding the defense effort under the terms of the finally revised measure is proof that the original bill went too far and that its framers perhaps had some purpose other than providing means for an adequate defense.

Strangely enough, Under-Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, a life-long Republican, is credited with the authorship of the original and obnoxious draft of this measure. What is stranger still, Patterson stubbornly defended the original measure even long after Democratic leaders on Capitol Hill refused to have anything to do with it.

Patterson's connection with the bill has led to speculation in Washington as to whether he is at heart a New Dealer of the Ben Cohen-Tommy Corcoran, socialistic type or whether some of that school of radical thought made a stooge out of him. At all events, Washington is seeing Under-Secretary Patterson in a new light—and, it might be added, any proposals which henceforth come from him will be very carefully analyzed before being adopted.

Instead of being a wide open and unlimited grant of power to the president, the new bill permits him to seize private property only when it consists of military and naval equipment, supplies or munitions, machinery, tools or materials for national defense.

Even then the president may not seize such property unless the need for it is "immediate and impending and such as will not admit of delay or resort to any other source of supply" and unless "all other means of obtaining the use of such property for the defense of the United States upon fair and reasonable terms has been exhausted."

Moreover, the seizure power is given to the president only for the duration of the current national emergency and in any event not beyond June 30, 1942. The original legislation did not contain any time limit and it left solely to presidential discretion the type of property to be seized, without any qualifications. The revised measure also provides for the return of the seized property to its owner after the passage of the emergency. The new bill also requires the president to make an accounting to Congress each six months of his exercise of the power.

Just the Result Of an Old Habit

CRITICISM of the administration's decision to ask Congress to retain the draftees and national guard units for service longer than the originally stated year is the result of an old New Deal habit—lack of frankness.

Most people feel that if the army thinks further training is necessary, then further training must be had. But most of us want to know why the administration led everyone to believe that only one year of training would be needed. Surely the army high command realized that more than twelve months were required to train the men in the highly technical aspects of modern war.

But why didn't somebody tell the truth to the draftees? Or did the army think that the New Deal would make good its promises to produce promptly the war material needed for the training?

In any event, confidence in the administration is not increased by its eleventh-hour disclosure that the draftees must be kept in the army camps indefinitely. A little frankness at the start would have prevented the present criticism—but then, the draft bill was passed during an election campaign!

Silver Purchase Policy Is Costly Nonsense

IN THE FACE of imposing attacks on the government's silver-purchase policy by experts in the OPM and by government economists and far-sighted officials, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has assured western senators that the administration contemplates no change in policy.

Under mandate from Congress, the Silver Purchase act was passed in 1934. In 1939 Congress took the price of newly mined silver out of the hands of the president and fixed it arbitrarily at 71.1 cents per ounce. Since that time the Treasury has continued to buy foreign silver at thirty-five cents an ounce.

The Treasury silver stock, monetized and nonmonetized, is estimated at approximately 88,800 tons, of which 42,000 tons has not been monetized and is stored at West Point. One of the arguments of the silver group in Congress has been that artificial silver prices are justified as a means of keeping miners employed in western states. But the existing emergency has raised the question as to why the government should continue to finance the silver industry, which competes with defense industries for labor, materials and equipment.

The point is made also that the time has come to substitute commercial demand for Treasury support and to introduce the hoard of 42,000 tons into the defense effort as a substitute for copper, tin and other materials of which there is a shortage.

It is estimated that 66,000,000 ounces of silver annually would completely replace tin for solder. It takes from two and one-half to five pounds of silver to replace forty to fifty pounds of tin in solder, which brings the cost to about the same basis. Silver is the most widely used precious metal for electrical contracts and is superior to all other metals as a conductor of heat with low electrical resistivity. Its use as a substitute for badly needed copper could be made feasible if the Treasury would sell it at a low price in the public interest.

At a time when our defense organization is searching desperately for strategic materials, it seems ridiculous and costly nonsense to continue the insane silver policy. It is not only foolish but it is also dangerous.

A Radio Movement Toward Socialism

A SURVEY discloses that five cities in the country now own and operate radio stations, four of them obtaining revenue from the enterprise.

The five stations are WNYC in New York City, WRR in Dallas, WJAX in Jacksonville, WOAM in Camden and WSUN in St. Petersburg. They were all established from 1921 to 1927. All of them operate on a full-time basis, and all except WNYC sell part of their broadcasting time to sponsors of commercial programs.

A considerable amount of the time on these stations is given over to broadcasts about the local government for the purpose of public education, though three of the stations reported sale of time for commercial programs which has become a source of fairly large income.

Thus does the movement toward government competition with private business and toward socialization government proceed apace. In view of the New Deal attitude toward that, it is not to be expected that the Federal Communications Commission will attempt any investigation of this sort of radio operation, although it might well do so in view of the advantage afforded a set of government "ins" over the "outs" by this control of a means of communication. That is one of the big advantages the dictators have.

The National Need And Sacrifices

"WE MUST all prepare to make the sacrifices that the emergency—as serious as war itself—demands. Whatever stands in the way of speed and efficiency in defense preparations must give way to the national need."

This commendable sentiment was voiced by none other than President Roosevelt in his annual message to Congress last January. Since then, the president has continued to call for sacrifice but to demand none except from the boys serving in the army. Rather than offend the entrenched bureaucrats in Washington, Mr. Roosevelt has permitted non-defense appropriations actually to be increased. Why?

For months the president has been told of one great bottleneck that has stood "in the way of speed and efficiency in defense preparations." This is none other than his own desk, unbelievably jammed with all the details of the defense program, the lend-lease administration, foreign affairs, and the regular presidential duties. Yet the president has not given way "to the national need" and delegated his power to a single full-time administrator. Why?

The answer to these questions can be made only by Mr. Roosevelt himself. Until that time his utterances about "sacrifice" and the "national need" remain—just utterances.

The Good Old Days were those in which the burning issue was whether American manufacturers should be permitted to sell warplanes to France.

The most sincere and most humiliating criticism of a statesman is the caliber of those who think they could take his place.

Charity isn't the only thing that covers a multitude of sins. There's that word ideology.

The Wind Blows Clean

By MARSHALL MASLIN

All night the wind beat wildly around the house. It rattled the windows and banged the trees and made a great to-do. . . . We looked out once and saw a thousand thousand stars up there bright and hard, enormous. No rain was on its way, no storm. It was just that rough and boisterous wind going by.

And when we woke in the morning leaves were everywhere. In corners, on the porch, against the fence. . . . All the dead and half-dead leaves that had been hanging on the trees, reluctant to go, delaying their farewell to the summer, were stripped from the boughs—and the trees were straight and lean and ready for the winter.

They had not been harmed at all, but the leaves were gone, gone from the pear, gone from the cherry, gone from the vine. . . . Blown clean away.

It took a great wind to do that. As sometimes it takes a great wind of another kind to sweep the linger, staying-to-long fears or sorrows or outworn habits, or prejudices, from out the human heart.

If you've lived long enough—and it need not be many years—you know what I'm meaning to say. . . . You know how you cling to the past that has ceased to have meaning, how the green leaves of another day hang on your memory long after they should be gone. How the weight of them wears you down, hampers you, rounds your shoulders.

And perhaps you know how sometimes after a great storm—be it of anger or grief or joy—you stand straight again, with renewed strength and wisdom, and you have made a new start, begun a new life. A great wind, sprung from the unknown, has swept you clean, stripped away the old and set you free. Let the great winds howl—they are YOU again!

Unfavorable News Concerning Russia Is Seen on Tap

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 25—Get set for unfavorable news out of Russia in the next six weeks.

The current advice of official authorities (uncolored by hopes) express doubt the Reds will last beyond September 15. That is the ultimate peace deadline date set in the revised Hitler timetable following his initial setback. The military situation unfortunately seems to justify the pessimistic prospect.

Paul Mallon

Near Moscow

The placing of Hitler's forces as late as last Thursday showed the furthest advance elements of his Ninth army were within 100 miles of Moscow at a village called Mojaisk. At all points the miscalculated Stalin line had been penetrated to considerable depth except in front of the city of Kiev. There the city had been nearly surrounded and the Russian forces enclosed.

A serious threat on Leningrad was being established by Mannerheim's Finnish army moving unexpectedly far around the northern side of Lake Ladoga. The Finns apparently intended to hit the city from the rear while the Nazis, coming up from the Southwest, struck in front. The casualties in the first month of the war suggest the Russians are losing roughly five to the Germans' one. Exact figures on dead and wounded have not been obtained, but ten divisions (150,000 men) of the Nazi army have been lost against fifty Russian divisions (750,000 men.)

Has 200 Divisions

For the final drive, Hitler has withdrawn all his forces from Greece and Northern Africa. In both instances the Italians have taken over guard duty.

As Hitler has 262 divisions in all and has left only fifteen to twenty-five on guard in France and the Lowlands, he seems to be using somewhere around 200 divisions (3,000,000 men) in the Russian campaign.

Against him the Russians have three main armies, under Gen. Budenny in the South, Tomoshenko in the center and Voroshilov in the North. Their size is not known but it is probably more than that of the assaulting Germans.

Thus 6,000,000 men are locked in the greatest struggle of all time, which has so far caused casualties nearing 1,000,000.

Blow-up at Hand

On this spot July 6, was written: "Mr. Knudsen's OPM and Leon Henderson's OPA are getting into each other's alphabet x x x Pending auto difficulties will probably bring matters to a showdown. (The defense) blowup may not be long delayed thereafter."

Two weeks later auto production curtailment had brought Messrs. Knudsen and Henderson to an open break. The third cited sentence of July 6 seems still as good as the first two, which should mean the blowup of the hashed-up defense production control is at hand.

There is almost unanimity of opinion around the top desks as to what Mr. Roosevelt is likely to do. The president cannot take either side of the argument unless he wants to divide or Mr. Henderson's whole viewpoint of superior authority over both of them is demanded.

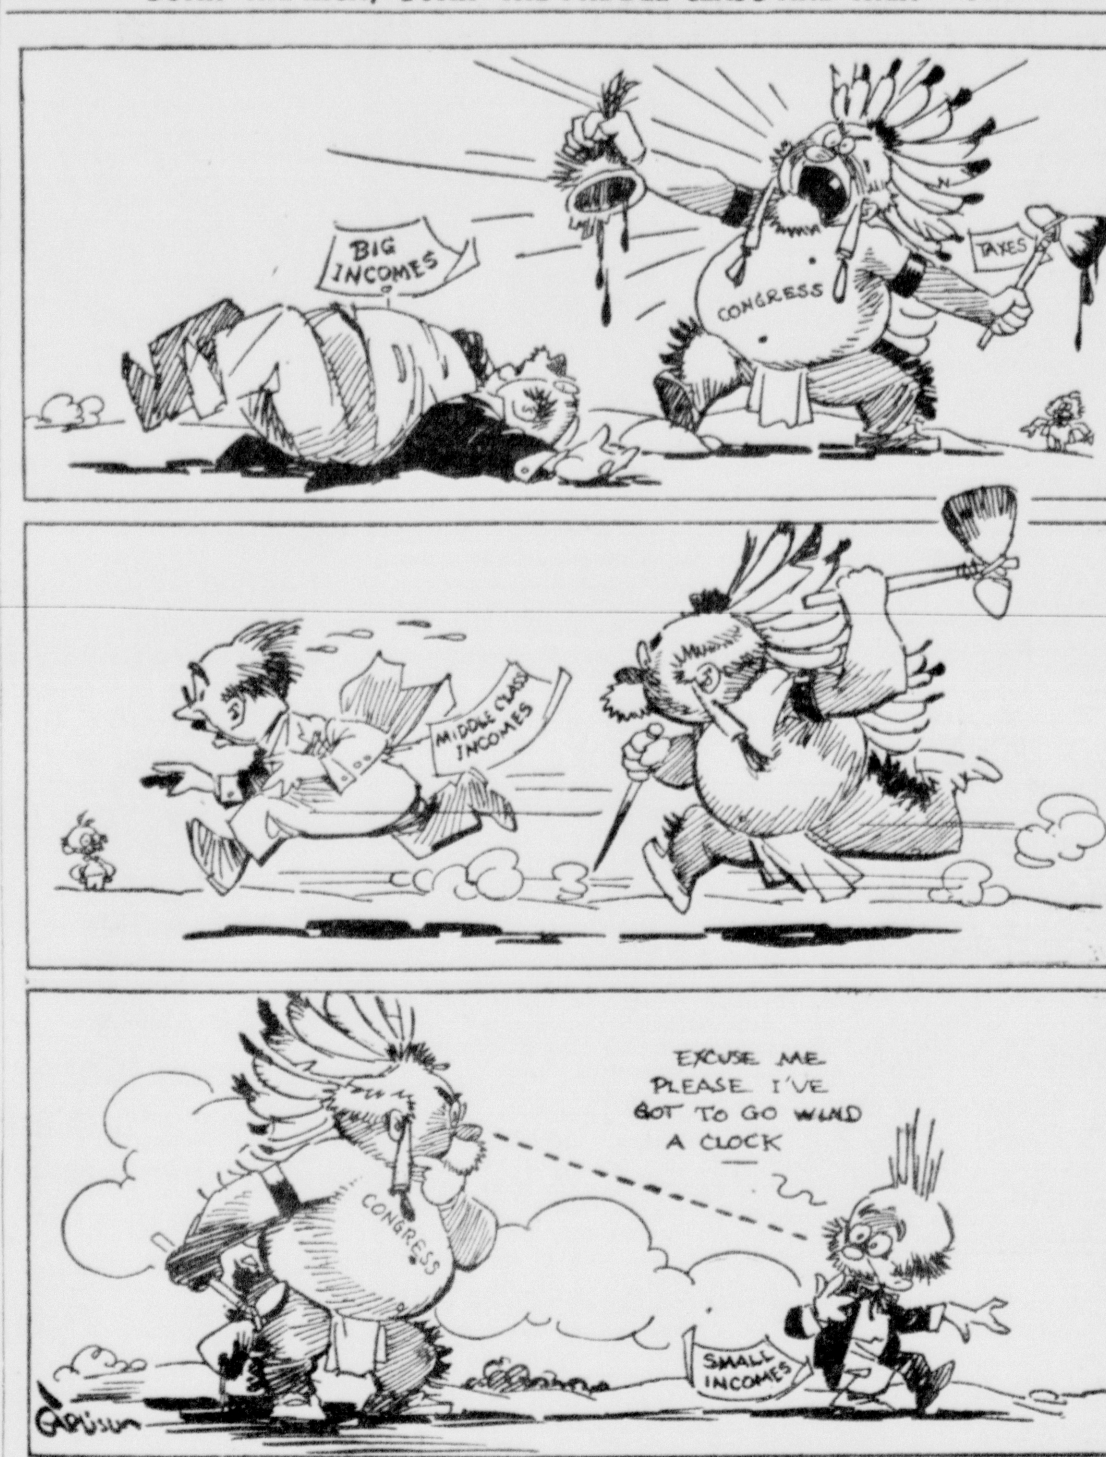

Two names which have survived advance discussions for such an overall head post are those of Assistant War Secretary Robert P. Patterson and the OPM liaison man with the president, W. L. Batt. Mr. Patterson has distinguished himself eliminating fossils and other embedded rock in the army lately. Mr. Batt has established a friendship with the president in his under-advised new personal relationship.

The New Dealers still want Vice President Wallace or Supreme Court Justice Douglas. But the choice of Patterson or Batt would go further toward establishing needed business confidence and national unity.

A Paradox

The Knudsen-Henderson scrap is a paradox in one respect. Mr. Hen-

Congress Faces Handicaps It Created In Moving To Stop Soaring of Prices

By MARK SULLIVAN

Congress shortly will begin to consider the "price control" legislation which the administration asks. "Price control" means prevent prices from going up. The measure is put forward as a way to stop the rise in cost of living. This is to be done by setting up an official government price-fixer. He is to have authority to say, as to the price of any commodity, "this far and no farther."

The bill is wholly a device to stop price-rises, arbitrarily. The proposal does not deal at all with causes of rising prices. It does not mention causes; it pointedly avoids mentioning causes. It proposes to leave all the causes of rising prices in existence—but prevent the results of the causes. It is like keeping the furnace burning strong, the radiator open full—but preventing the thermometer from rising. Whether this can be done is something the country will learn.

Artificial Stills
A principal cause of higher prices (in the United States at this time) is a group of artificial stills, under the government has set up, under prices of many commodities. It is a very forest of stills. Several of these stills are under the prices of farm crops—hence under prices of food, hence under cost of living. Some of the farm stills are complex, not easy to understand. I shall explain one—the still which is under wheat. (I confine myself to explaining this still—I refrain, at this time, from dealing with the intricate argument whether farmers ought to get higher prices for their crops, and if so by what means.)

There is not merely one still under wheat, there are three. The object of all is to make the price of wheat higher. The method is, to get farmers to raise less wheat. The inducement is cash, paid out of the U. S. Treasury. The cash gifts are called "benefit payments."

Three Gifts
(a) Farmers are given a direct cash payment, provided they plant only as many acres of wheat as Triple-A directs. The amount of this gift is about ten cents per bushel. This gift is accompanied by a provision that the farmer shall practice soil conservation—for example, plow his land in such a way as to minimize loss of soil by flood. But the purpose of the gift is to get the farmer to reduce his acreage of wheat.)

(b) The farmer is given a second cash gift, amounting to about seven cents per bushel, provided he plants only so much wheat as Triple-A directs. (The declared purpose of this gift is to bring the farmer's income up to what is called "parity.") "Parity" is the farmer's income as it was thirty years ago, 1909-14, in terms of purchasing power.)

(c) The farmer is given a third gift. This is not called a gift, it is a loan which amounts to a gift. Triple-A will loan any farmer (who reduces his wheat acreage) an amount averaging ninety-eight cents per bushel. But this is a special kind of loan. Triple-A calls it a "non-recourse" loan. It is a loan which the farmer does not need to repay, unless he wants to. If the price of wheat goes below 98 cents, the farmer ordinarily would not repay. The loan amounts to a guaranteed price for wheat.

More Inventions Needed for War
From the New York Herald Tribune

Some of the best scientific brains of the country, helped by thousands of inventors, are at work on devices which, it is hoped, will make war safer for our side and more perilous for the others. The annual crop of military mechanisms at the Patent office is about 75,000, while the National Inventors' Council passes on probably 25,000 more. This wealth of ideas still leaves the United States lacking a long list of chemical and other improvements which it is believed would be valuable. Many of these stress automatic or remotely controlled engines of war, including machine guns, torpedoes, ships, planes and mines.

In the same category would be practical light armored clothing, which has so far been found to be an unattainable combination. An air-cooled light machine gun, weighing little more than a rifle, which could be fired almost continuously without overheating, is earnestly sought. An invention which would be as novel as recent invading exploits of gliders and 'chutists is suggested by the quest for an oxygen helmet, with which submarines near land and march troops could land unseen from up a beach to form the spearhead for a surprise attack.

While fulfillment of some of the hopes of United States military authorities may be far in the future, about 400 recent suggestions are being thoroughly examined and tested. "Death rays" and beams that will cause enemy planes to plunge from the skies, about which a good deal was heard in the first world war, are at present out of fashion, as they do not seem nearer practical applicability now than they did then.

Doubtless the greatest triumph of all awaits the combatant which can put into the field invisible armies, cannon, battleships and tanks. Arrival of that day will definitely mark the end of war on earth.

Emergency Needs A New Definition, Gen. Johnson Says

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

NEW YORK, July 25—In order lawfully to hold the national guard, the reservists and the drafted men in service longer than the present fixed statutory period shall Congress declare a national "emergency" or merely find that "national interest is imperilled?" The question sounds like superficial legalism but it is far from that.

In the three governing statutes in all cases—the National Defense act, the Selective Service act and the law governing the reserves plus a couple of joint resolutions—it was particularly provided as a condition to extended service that there should be a declaration that the "national interest is imperilled." Such an affirmation, in addition to being a declaration of what nearly everybody recognizes as an undebatable truth, would be fulfilling the understanding of the obligation to serve on which all these classes put on their uniforms. It would leave no room for argument about broken faith or for a warranted feeling of injustice even in their own hearts.

Used for Everything

But the declaration of a "national emergency" is something else again. What is an "emergency?" The word has been used over the past eight years to describe everything from unemployment and a condition of price levels thought to be too low to a situation justifying the transfer of a hunk of our navy and the occupation of Iceland. It is a term so elastic that it could include meaning outright war.

There is another point. At this writing I have not time to check the wording of all the war statutes delegating authority to the president, both those recently passed and those left over from the World War, but I am reasonably sure that the declaration by Congress of a "national emergency" would raise several more personalized war powers than those in question here—the extension of military service of these temporary elements of our army. We might be buying a whole litter of pigs in pokes.

On the other hand, in view of the vague and sometimes very limited meaning hitherto given to the word "emergency" and the meticulously precise language in these statutes governing service ("national interest imperilled") it could be argued that the declaration of an "emergency" does not fulfill the requirements of the service statutes.

Army Safeguards Needed

It would seem very wise if Congress acts, as it must act to safeguard our half formed armies, to do so in precise performance of the service statutes and find specifically that "the national interest is imperilled." It might be even wiser to add, "in the sense in which those words were used (in various service statutes naming them) and not in a sense or with an effect to extend any other executive powers whatsoever."

Among others of the various suggestions to compose this predicament is that of paying large bonuses for men whose service is extended either by voluntary acceptance or by reason of congressional action.

Not Measured in Dollars

This is a lapse into an early error that plagued our military history for many years and reached the height of folly in the Civil War. You can't measure the obligation to military service in terms of dollars and you can't save whatever feeling of resentment there may be by requiring military service from one man and not another or as between classes of soldiers, by paying the former 400 bucks. If soldiers got a merely monetary reward for patriotic sacrifice, including sometimes death, there isn't enough wealth in the United States to support an army of a million men.

We can't depend for our defense on medieval mercenaries hired by the sovereign but only on the American principle of the universal obligation to military service in time of national danger and sacrifice beyond the possibility or desirability of monetary compensation.

Maryland Payrolls And Employment Continue To Rise

Increase Is Shown for Each
Six Months of Year,
Pohlhaus Reports

BALTIMORE, July 25 (AP)—Maryland payrolls and employment continued to rise during June, completing the first half year in more than a decade in which both employment and payrolls have increased for each of the six months, State Labor Commissioner John M. Pohlhaus says.

Employment increased 2.4 per cent over May, and combined weekly payrolls were up 3.5 per cent, Pohlhaus said.

Both increases were contra-seasonal, he added, the average change during the past eighteen years being a decrease of one per cent in employment and 7 per cent drop in payrolls from May to June.

The commissioner said the monthly report was based on returns from 642 manufacturing establishments employing 143,312 persons and paying out weekly wages of $4,493,249 during June.

Average weekly earnings in combined manufacturing industries during the past month amount to $31.35, the report said.

Using the selected group of firms reporting man-hours, the report continued, "an average hourly rate of 65.4 cents was determined for June and the average hours worked per week amounted to 42.1."

The factory employment index for last month was 135.1, an increase of twenty-seven per cent over the figure for June of last year, the report continued, and the payrolls index, 195.8, was a gain of 52.1 per cent over June, 1940.

The index is based on the monthly average of the years 1929, 1930 and 1931 as 100.

The Baltimore industrial area also gained in both employment and payrolls, employment increasing 2.5 per cent during the month and payrolls 3.1 per cent, Pohlhaus added.

The level of employment in selected manufacturing industries in the Baltimore industrial area last month was 29.7 per cent higher than that of June, 1940, and the level of payrolls was 54.8 per cent higher, the report said.

EASY TO READ HIM
SOMETIMES you will have a partner who indulges in monkey-bines of all kinds, in the play as well as the bidding. That may not be the best kind of winning bridge, but it certainly is a great tonic to keep you from going to sleep. There are times when you can't figure out what in blazes he holds, or is trying to do, but on other occasions it is easy to read him. The cards in your own hand may make it perfectly clear just what he is up to, whereas the opponents have no way of figuring him out.

North had no trouble at all in guessing the significance of his partner's 4-heart bid. The side was not using any artificial bidding except cue-bidding to show Aces. So when South showed the Ace of the heart suit which North himself held, North knew his partner was indulging in an untruth. It was easy for North to see what lead South was trying to cause. It could hardly be clubs, considering his own holding, so must be diamonds.

To help steer the lead where South wanted it, North cue-bid his club Ace at five, and South thereupon hopped at once to slam. West was a player who is known to believe everything he hears, so he led the suit in which the opponents had not shown the Ace, diamonds. East won this and returned another diamond to South. The trumps were dropped in two lucky rounds, and the diamonds were run for two heart discards from dummy. The heart A, club A for one heart discard from South, a ruffed club and a ruff of South's last heart followed, the hand finishing with South's trumps.

If South had led naturally, West would have led a heart to the Ace. The club A would have brought one heart discard, but when a diamond then got lost to the A, the setting heart trick would have been taken by the opponents.

Your Week-End Lesson

How are you on your mathematics of probabilities? Do you know how to figure the odds for and against various developments? Suppose, for instance, you evenly matched players sat down together to play 20 rubbers, voting after each rubber. What are the chances that some particular one of those players will win 20 consecutive rubbers? In the normal course of events, if a player takes part in an average of eight rubbers a week, how long should it be before he ever wins 20 rubbers in succession against players of equal skill?

Carroll Discovery In Western Movie

Another Earl Carroll discovery, Virginia Dale, has been climbing the success ladder of showdom ever since she was picked up from a group of Charlotte, North Carolina's loveliest girls and sent to Zelli's famous night club in New York City at the behest of Carroll.

Her film audience reaches a new high, now, when she is cast opposite the nation's box office attraction number four, Gene Autry, in "The Singing Hill," Republic picture now showing at the Embassy theater.

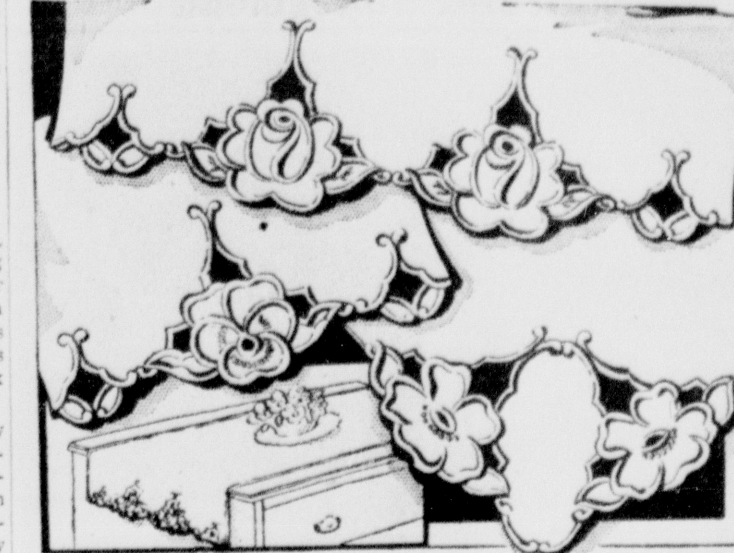

Miss Dale studied dancing under Ned Wayburn and with Tamiroff, Russian ballet master. With her sister Frances she toured the east, billed as the Paxton Sisters, but when the two came to Hollywood they decided there was little room in pictures for a team.

After splitting the team, Virginia got a contract at Warners and Columbia. She also appeared opposite Dennis O'Keefe in "The Kid From Texas" at MGM, but is best known for her work with Clark Gable and the five other blonde chorines in "Idiot's Delight."

Placed under contract by Paramount, then; she became one of their "Golden Circle" players and was borrowed by Republic for the feminine lead in "The Singing Hill."

FORT MEADE SOLDIERS TO GET MORE TIME OFF

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md., July 25 (AP)—The Twenty-ninth infantry division will have all of this Saturday off, instead of the customary afternoon half-holiday, and from next week on through August the officers and men will be given Wednesday afternoons off.

This announcement followed a conference held between Major General Milton A. Reckord, Division Commanding Officer, and Col. John A. Cutlins, Chief of Staff.

By having all of Saturday off the men will be able to leave Fort Meade tomorrow evening after retreat and will have until midnight Sunday to return.

It was explained that the soldiers are receiving the extra holiday periods because of their recent work in maneuvers at the A. P. Hill Military Reservation, in Caroline County, Va., and because there will be no leaves or furloughs after September 2 until the division returns from corps and army maneuvers in December.

The entire division will go to Caroline County September 13 for two weeks of divisional training, then will proceed to the vicinity of Wadesboro, N. C., to set up headquarters for second army corps maneuvers and war games between the First and Third armies in November.

Castle of Contentment

By LORENA CARLETON
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

YENA VARANOFF, young and pretty wife of

THEODORE VINCENT, wealthy estate owner, arrives in La Madera. She sends

ROSE, housekeeper for VERNON STONE, the Vincent family attorney, back east to keep her informed about

CARLYLE, Yena's little daughter, who is in the custody of Vincent's mother. Yena meets two young men in La Madera. One,

TATE CROMWELL, is arrogant, self-confident of his way with women. The other, SCOTT HAMILTON, is a pleasant young dude rancher.

YESTERDAY: Scott helps Yena when a sandstorm sweeps over her home.

CHAPTER SEVEN
AS WEEKS went by, plans made over a breakfast table materialized. Scott Hamilton was architect, carpenter, painter and landscape artist. He dug flower beds, irrigated the citrus—wearing high rubber boots—distributing the water evenly with a shovel. He made trips to the grocer, bought Yena the new books and magazines and a small radio, and brought a tiger kitten from Aunt Daisy's ranch.

To balance work they swam, rode horseback over the desert beneath the biggest moon in the world, drifted in a canoe on artificially built pleasure canals, and Scott was teaching her to shoot.

"Yena, you're turning into a real marksman," he praised one day. "Why, I bet you could split the whiskers on a mountain lion."

From a flattened pack he took the last cigar and lighted it. "I'm going to put this empty package on the outstretched arm of that saguaro. If you hit it, I'll take you dancing tonight. If you miss, I'll have you thrown into the jug for mutilating the desert cacti."

Yena didn't miss. Turning back to Scott Hamilton, she said: "I'm not sure about dancing. I think I'd better stick to the quiet pursuits."

"Like these little Annie Oakley shooting events? Nope, Yena, we're going tonight. No telling when you'll get another chance to dance with me. I'm supposed to be back at the Northern Ranch Thursday."

Yena exclaimed: "But that's today!"
"No," Hamilton's tanned face was imperturbable. "A week ago today." He shouldered their guns and ignored the girl's groan. "Oh, stop wailing, Yena. Bring the shells and the water canteen and come on."

The Andalusia is an outdoor club and dance floor, a place of cool breezes, entirely surrounded by enormously tall white oleander trees. Yena and Scott Hamilton were dancing there beneath a sky of bluish orchid.

"A night without stars," Scott said.
Yena looked up at star-encrusted heavens. "But there are stars!"
"Your dress, I mean. Black like a misty black night in the tropics." He led her through a swift whirl. "You're a marvelous dancer, Yena. Everyone is watching us. They're saying: 'Who is that handsome man dancing with the blond girl?'"

Yena laughed appreciatively. Then suddenly her face sobered and changed color in the subdued lights. She nodded a formal greeting toward a table at the edge of the dance floor. Scott glanced over his shoulder, then inexplicably danced toward the opposite side of the floor and to their table.

"Now, tell me all about this Casanova Cromwell business."

Provoked, the girl said: "There's nothing to tell. I bought my little ranch from the Cromwell firm and had Sunday dinner with them."

"Only that? Yet one look at him boozes you from pale ivory to deep rose. Yena, you might as well know right now that I'm no strong stent soul who is going to ride into the western sunset while some other fellow gets the girl. You surely don't think I go about building things and smashing my thumbs because I like it, do you?"

"I supposed you felt sorry for me."

He assured her, "I do, I'll bet Cromwell does too."

She snapped disgustedly, "I don't

"I supposed you felt sorry for me," she said.

know how he feels."

Tate Cromwell walked into his sister's bedroom early Friday morning. "Tell me about Scott Hamilton. Wasn't he in your class down at the U?"

Diane gave a series of noisy, rude yawns. "Go away, Tate. I'm in no mood for college reminiscing. You'll be wanting me to give a couple of lusty yells next." She evaded his thumb, threatening her nose and commenced reluctantly. "Well, he's nice. Good family. Ole Plantation Virginny or some such. Doesn't kiss a girl on a first date. He can take off his coat without taking off his shoulders. Doesn't have tons of money, but some. Brains, too. She stretched and yawned again. "Why the curiosity?"

"He was dancing with Yena at the Andalusia last night."

"What difference does it make to you who dances with her?"

Tate walked to Diane's dressing table mirror and began looping a striped necktie. "I know all the answers and I keep saying them, but so help me, Di, when I saw her last night looking so beautiful, dancing with Hamilton—well, it got me." He met Diane's whoop of derision bravely. "Go on. Laugh. But it's true. I wanted to choke her, or better still, him."

The girl reached for a cigarette. "Why didn't you compromise and choke yourself?"

Tate sat down on a plump gray satin chair beside his sister's bed and regarded her with a solemn gaze. "I'm going after Yena Varanoff semi-seriously."

It was raining that night in fast, enormous chilling drops, strangely foreboding in a country so accustomed to clear skies. The temperature had made a decided drop. Overnight it was fall.

Yena answered the bell, let Tate in and quickly slammed the door against ailing rain.

"It's nice of you to ask me out," he said.

"No," Yena said. "Selfish. That's why I refused your invitation. I wanted to sit home by the fire."

"You look lovely," young Cromwell complimented. Yena was wearing the black net gown again. "I like that dress. I even liked it last night when you were wearing it for Hamilton."

Yena ignored his allusion to

Local D.A.R. Members Will Go to Jackson's Mill

Cresap Chapter Will Be Represented at Luncheon Today

Cresap Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution will be guests at the annual luncheon of the Daughters of the American Revolution of West Virginia at Jackson's Mill, W. Va. The chapter received the invitation through Mrs. William Gulland, 628 Washington street, Mrs. Gulland was Regent of John Hart Chapter, Elkins, W. Va., when she resided there. Potomac Valley Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Keyser, W. Va., will be the hostess this year.

Jackson's Mill was the boyhood home of Stonewall Jackson, and is located about twenty-five miles from his birthplace. It has been made a shrine for the West Virginia young people. The 4-H clubs, the Hi-Y clubs, church groups and Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts use the recreational area. Each county has their own building and there are large dining rooms and assembly halls. The Daughters of the American Revolution of West Virginia raised the funds to build an amphitheater for the use of the children.

Among those attending from here are Mrs. R. Finley Thompson, state registrar; Mrs. William Gulland, Miss Mary Brengle, Mrs. Ernest Brackett, Miss Fannie Lloyd, Mrs. Harry Frost, Mrs. Joseph Liechtenstein, Mrs. William A. Eisenberger, Mrs. John Finlay and Mrs. Marshall Miller.

Committee Will Hold Dinner and Dance

Charles F. Hare will be master of ceremonies for the dinner being held by the Committee of the Co-operative Traffic Program of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening, in Circle Inn, McMillen highway.

Rex Miller, chief clerk; Harold Powell, president of the association; and L. L. Robinson, assistant master mechanic, will be the speakers at the dinner and will be introduced by the master of ceremonies.

Following the dinner an informal dance will be held.

Birthday Party Is Given for Ralph Thomas

"Hobo Convention" Is Held at Home of Miss Dorothea Sliser

Miss Dorothea Sliser entertained for Ralph Thomas, Thursday evening at her home in LaVale, with a birthday party in the form of a "hobo convention" which ended in a wienner roast.

The "convention" was held on the lawn which was decorated with Japanese lanterns. One of the outstanding events of the party was a seven-day Chautauqua which included community singing; initiation into the Mimic club; two selections by a trio composed of Miss Mildred Haffer, Mrs. Thelma MacDonald and Miss Audrey Reckley; a quiz; two piano accordion solos by Miss Haffer and Mrs. George Triplett; a mock wedding; a charade; a woman buying a hat; a student baseball game and a pantomime, "fans at a football game".

William Beale was master of ceremonies and crowned Mr. Thomas, "king Hobo". Following a hobo hike the wienner roast was held in the back garden, which was decorated in red, white and blue electric lights. The refreshments booth was decorated with an American flag, a gift from the Veterans of Foreign Wars to Miss Sliser's great uncle, the late Louis Watson. The large white birthday cake was decorated in a red border with an American flag made of the red, white and blue candies.

Guests included Miss Mildred Haffer, Miss Audrie Reckley, Miss Elizabeth Stanforth, Miss Helen Beale, Miss Betty Arrington, Miss Dorothy MacDonald, Richard Soethe, Walter Hedrick, Ralph Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Claude MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. William Beale, Mr. and Mrs. George Triplett, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Marple and Mrs. Robert Arrington.

Three High School Graduates Enlist in U. S. Army Here

Three graduates of this year's class of Circleville, W. Va., high school enlisted in the United States Army yesterday at the local recruiting station, according to Sgt. Clarence Blehn.

They are John C. Smith, Olla B. Arbaugh, and Forrest G. Harper. All three were assigned to the Army Air Corps, Panama.

Large Attendance Is Reported at Benefit Exhibit

One Woman Travels 150 Miles To See the Colleen Moore Doll House

Miss Henrietta Schwarzenbach, president of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children, and Dr. George E. Bennett, Baltimore, of the Children's Hospital school, who are visiting at Bedford Springs, drove to Cumberland yesterday to see the Colleen Moore Doll House which is being shown on the fourth floor of Rosenbaum's store today and next week, during store hours, for the benefit of the crippled children.

Miss Mary Jane Burns, Miss Moore's special representative, advises all who wish to see the Doll House, to come in the morning, when possible, to avoid the long waits necessitated by the crowds attending in the afternoons.

Miss Burns reports that 800 attended the exhibition Thursday and almost that many yesterday. Among the group was one woman who told Miss Burns she lived in West Virginia and had traveled 150 miles to see the fairy castle, for she did not expect it to return to any city as near her home.

Engagement Revealed

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Fries, Pittsburgh, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Genevieve Fries, to Frederick Paul Porter, son of James V. Porter, Ellerslie.

Miss Fries is a graduate of Allegheny high school, and Madison college, Harrisonburg, Va. She is a teacher in the Hyndman school.

Mr. Porter is a graduate of Allegheny high school and is employed by the Celanese Corporation of America.

The wedding will be solemnized August 15.

Events in Brief

Mr. and Mrs. L. Leslie Helmer, 500 Washington street, will entertain informally at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at their cottage on the South Branch. A picnic supper will be served.

The mixed tournament will be held at the Cumberland Country Club, Sunday. Play will begin at 1:45 o'clock. Mrs. Irving Millenson is women's tournament chairman and Carroll France is chairman for the men.

Mrs. Maude Bollinger was honored guest at a surprise birthday party, given by her sister, Mrs. Leota Gureley, Thursday evening at her home, 517 Maryland avenue.

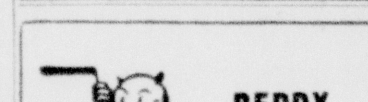

Two Persons Treated For Injuries in Memorial Hospital

Two accident cases were treated yesterday in the dispensary in Memorial hospital, Edward Shaffer, 59, of 1201 Oldtown road, suffered a lacerated lip and chin when "someone" hit him in a beer tavern on Oldtown road, according to hospital attaches. Shaffer was not sure just what weapon was used to inflict the wound, they added.

Carol Newberry, 3, of 119 North Allegany street, fell on a toy and suffered a cut lip. After treatment both were discharged.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Gal. 1:11, 12; I Thess. 2:13; II Tim. 3:14-17; II Pet. 1:14-16; Jude 3.

We thank God without ceasing, because, when ye received the word of God, ye received it not as of men, but as the word of God.

All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness.

In Paul's epistles, says Peter, are some things hard to understand, which some who are unlearned and unstable quote to their own destruction.

It was needful to me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith, wrote St. Jude. (GOLDEN TEXT—II Tim. 3:16)

The Golden Text

Timothy learning the scriptures

"Every scripture inspired of God is also profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness."—II Tim. 3:16.

Now that you've emptied the cold frame and seed beds of annuals, start sowing perennials. Fork the soil and rake it smooth. Plants will be ready for fall.

Since one of the principal objects of mulching roses, perennials and the newly planted shrubbery is to keep down the weeds, using too thin a mulch is largely wasted effort.

Swimming Is Ideal from Standpoint Of Exercise but It Has Its Hazards

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Swimming is the ideal form of exercise because "it calls into play the general body musculature and produces the elongated, smoothly functioning type of muscle in a uniformly developed body." This is the opinion of an eminent physician, as well as an expert swimmer, Dr. David Mezz, of Brooklyn. This should be good news in this season of swimming. Natural water is best—the ocean, the lake, the river. The ocean is so saturated with oxygen that it detoxicates all noxious matter almost instantly. Sea animals are so used to a high oxygen content in their environment that they will hardly live an hour in a bucket of sea water that can not renew its vitalizing force.

Safe Swimming Pools

Modern hygiene and the work of sanitary engineers have made artificial pools safe and comfortable. The bacterial content of the water, cleanliness of the water, personal cleanliness of the bathers, laundering of suits, maintenance of sanitary conditions on the premises have led to great reduction in the incidence of disease conditions from swimming pools.

Filtration of the water, and reduction of bacteria by ultraviolet ray or passage of the water through ozonating machines or the chemical treatment of the water by chlorine do not make the water at all harmful and have eliminated a great

Limit Time in Water

Then too, the water as a medium keeps the body cool, and there is no warning sense of overheating to tell the swimmer he has had enough. Dr. Taylor and Dr. Dayenforch in a recent study concluded that body chilling from swimming caused definite changes which predispose to infections of the nose and ears. The number of white cells in the blood is reduced on the surface of the body and the protective powers of the fixed tissue cells are reduced as well as a change in the mucous membrane of the nose. This from chilling alone, to say nothing of the washing away of the protective coating of mucus in the nose and the shrinking of the mucous membrane from the effect of the water. The warning is very definite and applies to all, even the strongest and most confident swimmer. The limit of bathing time should be 45 minutes.

Questions and Answers

J. F.—"Is a child born of a parent who stutters likely to inherit this speech defect? Can such imperfection be corrected?"
Answer: There is no hereditary tendency in stammering. Stammering can be corrected in many cases, but the methods of treatment vary and all require great patience.

R. R.—"What causes kidney stones? Does drinking coffee cause them?"

Answer: Nearly every article of diet has been accused of causing kidney stones, but none has been definitely proved to do so.

Cannon To Lead Soldier Singers In Concert Here

Fisher To Direct 40-piece Band at Constitution Park on August 3

Byron Cannon, former director of the Bucknell University Glee Club, Lewisburg, Pa., will direct the forty singers of the One Hundred and Fifteenth Infantry Glee Club, of Fort George G. Meade, when it appears here for a concert Sunday, August 3, at 8 p. m., in Constitution park.

Warrant Officer Fisher, of Frederick, will direct the forty-piece band from Fort Meade, which will appear on the same program. It was announced yesterday by Mrs. Harry E. Flook, chairman of the Cumberland Soldiers' Service Committee.

The eighty visiting singers and bandmen will be given access to the swimming pool at the park after they arrive here and will be the guests of Fort Cumberland Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at an open air buffet luncheon, which will be served at 5 p. m., in the grove adjoining the wild life building.

Float of Local Union 870 Featured with Story in Electrical Journal

The float presented in the Baltimore and Ohio Day parade here May 28 by Local Union No. 870, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, is featured in an article appearing in the July issue of the Journal of Electrical Workers and Operators, published in Washington, D. C.

The float was a graphic illustration of how electric train control operates with explanations being given through the public address system all along the route of the parade.

Karl D. Bachman, financial secretary of Local Union No. 870, contributed the article and photograph to the journal.

Local Women Donate Writing Desks to Cumberland Soldiers

An appeal issued this week by the Cumberland Soldiers' Service Committee for writing desks for the recreation headquarters of Company G of Cumberland, at Fort George G. Meade, was met with a quick response by two local women, according to Mrs. Harry E. Flook, chairman.

Two desks were donated—one by Mrs. Rowella Landis, of 227 Fayette street, and the other by Mrs. J. Orville Fier, of 135 Reynolds street. An army truck will be sent here this weekend to move the desks to camp.

Local Man Is Fined For Dumping Garbage Along Ridgeley Road

Fay Short, of Cumberland, was fined $10 and costs, last night, by Mayor Paul K. Morgan in Ridgeley justice of the peace court on a charge of dumping garbage along the highway outside the town. He was arrested yesterday afternoon by C. V. Barnard, chief of police.

Richard Combs, of Winchester, Va., forfeited bond of $50.00, when he failed to appear on a charge of drunken driving. He was arrested Monday on Main street by Chief Barnard.

Rogell Resigns At Lancaster

LANCASTER, Pa., July 25 (AP)—Billy Rogell, former star with the Detroit Tigers, announced tonight he had retired as manager of the last place Lancaster and Red Roses in the Interstate Baseball League.

Rogell said he retired because of a dispute with the club owners that he was a playing manager. Because of an injury he received in an automobile accident in the spring Rogell has played only a few games. He said he planned to return to Detroit where he will campaign for a city council berth.

Fred Archer, southpaw pitcher, was named to succeed Rogell.

Police Boys' Club Fund Is Increased to $479

Contributions in the campaign to secure funds to send 100 members of the Cumberland Police Boys' Club to the "Y" Camp for one week in August were increased to $479 yesterday, enough to take care of sixty-eight boys on the South Branch.

Police Boys' Club officials estimate that it will require the raising of $600 to send 100 boys to the camp.

LOCAL WORLD WAR HERO IS FIRST TO CONTRIBUTE IN ALUMINUM CAMPAIGN

A World war hero had the honor of dropping the first piece of scrap aluminum into the bin at the Public Safety building on Wednesday, the day before the local campaign opened, according to Guy Long, a member of the city street department.

George E. Rubi, city employee, who won the Distinguished Service Cross and the French Croix de Guerre, was on the scene when the bin was erected and deposited an aluminum article.

Rubi, who lives at 535 Columbia avenue, served as a corporal in Company F, Fifth Maryland Infantry in 1918 and saw service in the Meuse-Argonne and Bois-de-Cosenov sectors of France.

He received the Distinguished Service Cross from the United States Army for displaying great bravery and bringing to shelter a wounded comrade. The French Croix de Guerre was conferred on him for rescuing a comrade under heavy bombardment.

Magistrate Dismisses One Charge against Religious Sect Member

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 25 (AP)—One of two charges against Frederick Stange, of Baltimore, who with thirty-seven other Jehovah's Witnesses is accused of violating city ordinances, was dismissed late today by Trial Magistrate James G. Woodward.

Stange and other members of the religious sect were arrested by Annapolis police July 12 on charges of selling religious literature without a license and with obstructing traffic. Although finding Stange innocent on the test case, Woodward said he would withhold announcing a decision until Aug. 29 on a second charge of selling magazines without a license.

The other thirty-seven renewed their bonds today pending the outcome of Stange's case. The trial magistrate said if Stange were exonerated Aug. 29, the charges against the other defendants would be not-prosecuted.

Japan Expected To Take International Settlement Over

SHANGHAI, Saturday, July 26 (AP)—American official quarters today expressed belief Japan's first retaliatory action against the freezing of her assets in the United States and the British Empire would be taken at Shanghai.

They expected Japan might shortly take over the International Settlement and the French Concession, where more than 4,000,000 Chinese and 100,000 foreigners reside and where American investments valued at $50,000,000 are situated. British investments there are valued at $200,000,000.

Actual occupation, they believed, might be carried out through the Japanese-sponsored Nanking regime which, under Japanese prompting, has been threatening since its formation in March, 1940, to "abolish" foreign concessions and settlements.

Frederick Will Have Two Guard Companies

FREDERICK, July 25 (AP)—Two companies of the newly-authorized Maryland State Guard will be formed in Frederick, and recruiting already is under way.

There will be sixty-four enlisted men and three officers in each company, to be known as Companies A and B. The local units will be part of the Seventh Battalion commanded by Col. E. Brooke Lee, of Silver Spring.

Company A will be commanded by Captain G. Hunter Bowers and Company B by Captain Brice P. Selby, both World war veterans. First Lieutenant J. Bernard Pink and Second Lieutenant G. Raymond Shipley will be the other officers in Company A, and First Lieutenant Harry E. Pettinelli and Second Lieutenant Erwin C. Kump will be the officers in Company B.

Practice Bomb Drops in Street

NORFOLK, Va., July 25 (AP)—If there had been any air raid shelters handy a part of Norfolk's population would have lived for them today.

A ten-gauge practice bomb, which startled passersby said "fell from the sky," exploded in the center of a street in a negro residential section, emitting a cloud of smoke. Another dropped nearby but didn't go off.

Officials of the Naval Air Station said they would attempt to determine if the bombs came from a navy plane.

Berlin Is Bombed Again by British

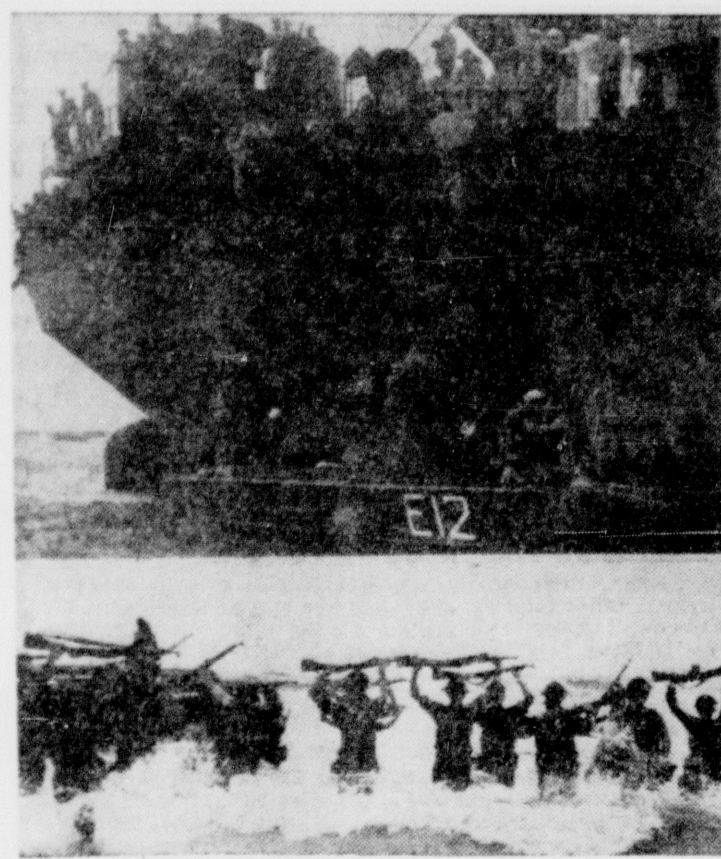

BERLIN, Saturday, July 26 (AP)—Berlin experienced another air raid last night after sleeping undisturbed for fifty-three consecutive nights. Authorized sources said no bombs were dropped within the city limits.

The RAF also attacked various points in Northern Germany where explosives and incendiary bombs were said to have killed and wounded an unstated number of civilians and damaged or destroyed apartment buildings.

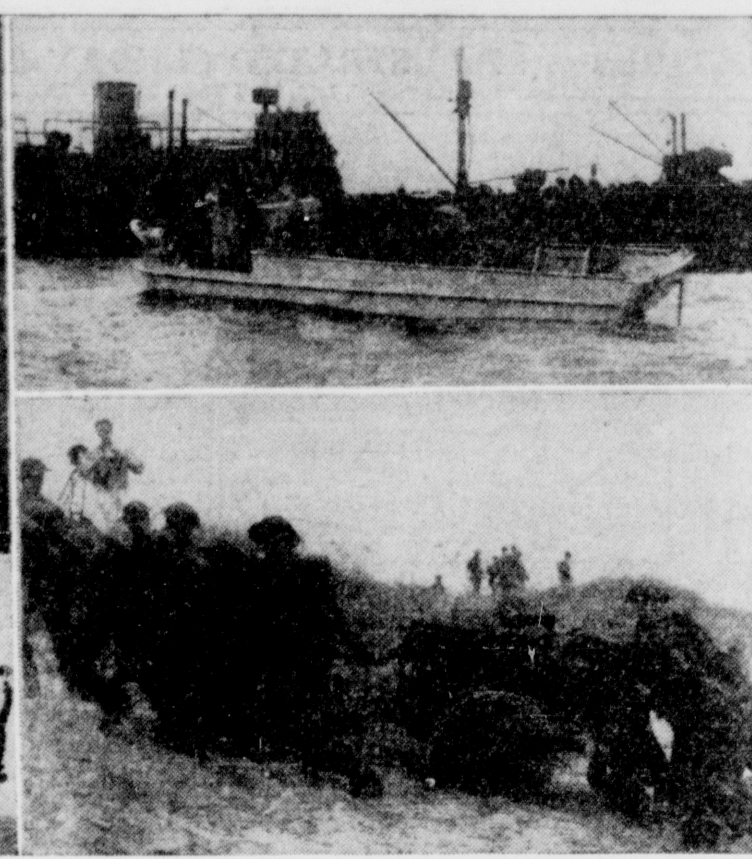

Military targets were undamaged, it was said, and five British planes were shot down.

Berlin is served by about twenty railway stations.

AMERICAN TROOPS TRAIN FOR AN INVASION

United States Marines, in cooperation with the army and navy, engage in invasion maneuvers near Jacksonville, N. C., and are shown establishing a beachhead on a theoretically hostile shore. Top left, they go over the side into a landing boat. Top right a light tank is floated ashore. Lower left, the Marines hurry to the beach through the shallow water. Lower right, they drag one of their pack howitzers into position.

American Tung Oil Industry Growing Up, But It's Still Far From Being a Bonanza

A productive tung nut tree at Gainesville. The fruit greatly resembles walnuts.

AP Feature Service

GAINESVILLE, Fla.—The South is growing oil on trees. It's tung oil, which comes from nuts of a tree native to China and forms a valuable ingredient for paints and varnishes, particularly paints used on warships, planes and tanks. And there are a score of other uses.

Year's Crop A Record With demand for the oil increasing because of the national defense program and the Chinese supply greatly reduced because of shipping difficulties, the 19-year-old American tung oil industry plans to market a record 5,000,000 pounds this year.

This represents a substantial increase over the annual 3,000,000 to 3,500,000 pounds after low spring temperatures almost wiped out the crop in 1937, but is only a fraction of imports from China which in normal times run to 175,000,000 tons a year. Growers and federal experts are making plans for greatly expanding production, but are proceeding with extreme caution.

With the current crop expected to bring 25 cents a pound, tung oil growing is reasonably profitable, but—government field specialists make it plain—is no bonanza. The big leafed tung plant requires several years to begin producing and will grow only within a narrow range of climatic and soil conditions. The 175,000 acres in the United States are located in Florida and in narrow gulf regions of Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

Growing Area Limited Future production is expected to be limited largely to these regions because of climatic and soil requirements. A little too hot, too cold, too wet, too dry, or a little too much of this or that, and tung trees just won't grow.

Pioneer growers have carried the load of experimentation until recently, but the Department of Agriculture now is operating tung oil laboratories in Gainesville and at Baton Rouge, La.

case are not in dispute" and the point at issue is whether a labor dispute caused the miners to be idle. He traced the birth of the unemployment laws in various states, citing that the United States has far behind European countries in such legislation because each of the 48 states is a separate unit, and it was not until the federal social security law was enacted that all of the states passed measures to comply with a federal standard and provide benefits for unemployed persons.

Outlining the negotiations in March between the union officials and mine owners, he said John L. Lewis, president of the UMWA, had presented 21 demands in a proposed new contract and one of them was to eliminate wage differentials between various fields. Lewis proposed that the mines be kept open if no agreement was reached before the current contract expired, and the terms to be made retroactive. This was rejected by the operators because they would, in effect, be "buying a pig in a poke."

"It was generally understood that the mines would close if no agreement was reached by April 1," Krieger said. He added that the union kept the miners from working after that date, and cited that B. F. McCracken, superintendent of the Consolidated Coal Company, had to obtain permission from John T. Jones, president of District No. 16, of the union, to have several men unload some coal that had been mined prior to the mine stoppage. He exhibited a telegram from Jones, granting the request, on certain conditions.

Hagerstown Bank Deposits Increase

HAGERSTOWN, Md., July 25 (AP)—Reflecting the business upswing, total deposits in Hagerstown's four banks increased more than $1,500,000 in the year ended July 1.

Latest statements from the banks showed that total deposits of the four institutions as of July 1 were $15,804,623 compared with $14,247,517 as of July 1, 1940.

Combined surpluses of the banks as of July 1 amount to $580,000 compared with $547,000 a year ago. Total deposits in each bank on July 1, 1940, and July 1, 1941 were: Farmers and Merchants, $1,955,519 and $2,046,558; Hagerstown Trust, $2,030,108 and $2,272,380; Second National, $4,025,800 and $4,197,297; Nicodemus National, $6,236,990 and $7,288,388.

Defense Expenditures Total $50,785,000,000

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—Actual and proposed defense expenditures total $50,785,000,000 the Office of Production Management disclosed today in a compilation which included British orders in this country.

The total of United States appropriations and contract authorizations, including funds made available to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was $47,116,000,000, as of July 15. Orders placed by the British commitments included $11,957,000,000 for airplanes, $8,483,000,000 for naval vessels, merchant ships and transportation equipment; $8,081,000,000 for guns and ammunition; $5,530,000,000 for industrial facilities; $4,353,000,000 for posts, depots, and other non-industrial construction; $4,000,000,000 for other equipment and $8,381,000,000 for miscellaneous items.

Two Divorce Suits Filed by Wives

Ask Severance of Matrimonial Bonds and Custody of Children

Two suits were filed in circuit court yesterday by wives seeking absolute divorces from their husbands, Mildred E. Hawse asks a severance of matrimonial bonds from Clarence W. Hawse and custody of their two minor children. The suit, filed by Harold E. Naughton, attorney, also asks counsel fees and alimony for the support of the children.

Agnes Fahey Myers who married Frank J. Myers July 18, 1928 asks an absolute divorce from him and custody of their four children. The bill of complaint states they lived together until February, 1933. She charges cruelty.

He is now a resident of Baltimore and Associate Judge William A. Huster signed an order for him to pay counsel fees on or before August 15 provided he can not show any cause to the contrary why he should not do so. Julius E. Schindler, attorney, represents the plaintiff.

Japan and Vichy Regime Agree on 'Joint Defense'

(By The Associated Press.) TOKYO, Saturday, July 26—The Japanese government announced today it had undertaken "joint defense" of French Indo-China with the French.

This co-operation, the government said, was brought about by "increased signs that even the security of Indo-China is being threatened." Prior to the announcement (which coincided with a similar statement in Vichy), Japanese sources had displayed both surprise and astonishment over the United States government's stand on the Far East. One widely-circulated newspaper called upon the Japanese to be prepared for any action the United States may take regarding the Orient.

Japanese Liner Will Not Dock Today

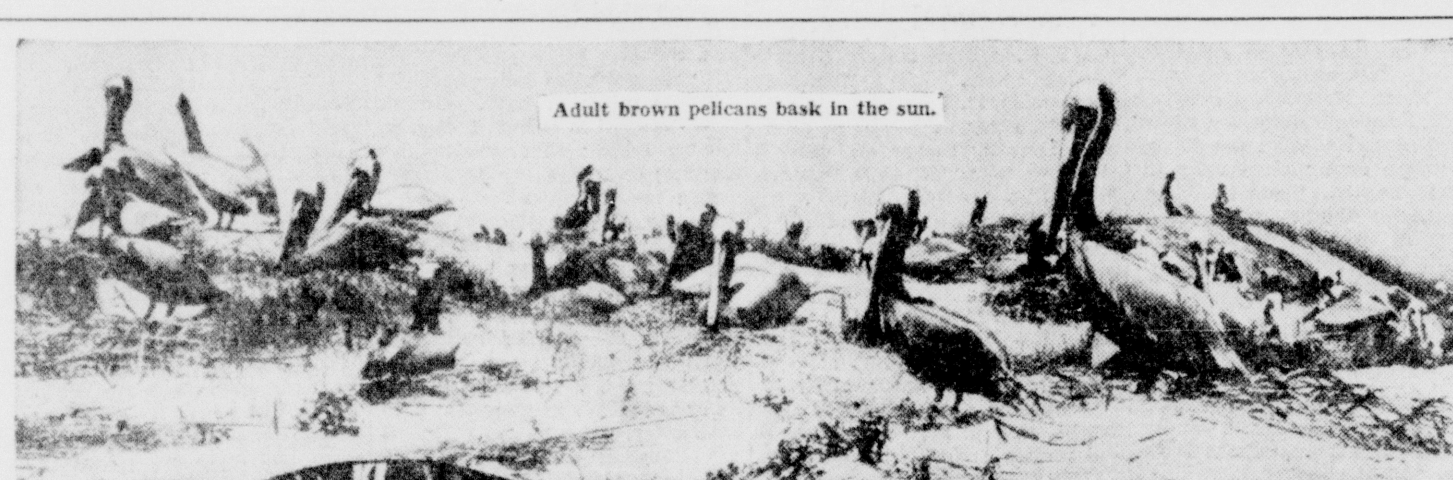

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25 (AP)—N. Y. K. shipping line officials announced tonight the Japanese Liner Tatuta Maru, hovering off this port with a $2,500,000 cargo of silk and more than 100 Americans among her passengers, would not dock here tomorrow as previously reported.

Before the president's order freezing Japanese assets was made public, the N. Y. K. office received word from the big ship she would be in at 5 a. m. The announcement gave rise to speculation that special arrangements had been made through the State department to avoid seizure of the ship.

About 8:30 p. m. the N. Y. K. office said "some delay in the arrival of the Tatuta Maru is anticipated." Officials said they hoped to have further information "shortly," but pointed out all authority for directing ship movements rested with company headquarters office in Tokyo.

Adult brown pelicans bask in the sun.

With their lack of feathers, these baby brown pelicans must be glad it isn't cold.

HOW TO FRY
THE CHICKEN NICELY

Summer could never be summer without its delicious platters of fried chicken. Cooks may complain about having to stand over a hot stove to fry it, but the praises they get from those around the company table or the picnic basket more than compensate them for their work.

There are two schools of chicken fryers, but only one of eaters. The fryers are about equally divided into those who stick to the flour and salt method grandmother used and those who roll their chicken in batter and crumbs. Regardless of which method is used, however, it is the heat that tells the final story. Use enough heat to get a crisp, brown outside crust, but reduce the heat low enough to keep the chicken tender and moist inside.

A chicken weighing from three to four pounds is the best size for frying. After the chicken has been browned, the temperature should be lowered and the meat steamed in a covered skillet or roaster for about an hour. Drain off the fat before steaming. Then remove the cover long enough before serving for the chicken to dry outside.

When making apple sauce, don't peel the apples if you want to preserve all the vitamin B. Just core the apples, slice them and put them on to cook.

Hot Dishes Are "Musts" For Health

Ham makes "table talk" when topped with canned sliced mushrooms and served directly from the skillet.

HAM WITH MUSHROOMS

Pan broil a slice of smoked ham. Move ham to one side of skillet. Drain 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms from liquid; brown in ham drippings in skillet. Stir in 1 tablespoon flour; add 1/2 cup sour cream and the mushroom liquid. Cook, stirring until creamy. Spread part of dressing over the ham slice and serve while hot.

1/2 teaspoon minced onion, 1/2 teaspoon each of salt, paprika and celery salt. Add a beaten egg and 2 tablespoons melted butter. Stuff tomatoes and place in shallow baking dish. Pour 2 cups canned cream of mushroom or asparagus soup. Bake 35 minutes in a moderate oven. Baste several times with the soup and serve in baking dish.

For something new in fish, try fish steak cerele. Get two slices of fish of a pound each. (Halibut, white fish, swordfish, salmon.) Place one slice in a shallow buttered baking dish and sprinkle generously with chopped celery and parsley, and a little salt and paprika. Add a layer of sliced tomatoes and cover them with a well seasoned mayonnaise. Sprinkle with more salt, paprika and minced onions. Add top layer of fish. Season it and sprinkle lightly with flour. Spread with blended butter and lemon juice. Add a cup of boiling water and 1/2 cup tomato juice. Cover and bake 1 1/2 hours in a moderate oven. Baste with pan drippings.

Meat cutlets royale are glorified hash cakes. Mix 4 tablespoons flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon each of paprika and celery seed with 4 tablespoons flour. Add a cup of milk. Cook slowly and stir until thick. Add a cup of chopped cooked meat, 1/2 cup boiled rice, 1/2 cup chopped cooked carrots, and 1 tablespoon each of chopped green peppers, olives and catsup. Cool, take up the mixture in tablespoonfuls and drop in crumbs. Then egg yolk, and again in crumbs. Shape into cutlets and fry in fat until well browned. Serve on platter, surround with creamed green beans, tomato sauce or brown gravy.

Round steak benedict is easy to prepare. Have a pound slice of round steak tenderized. Brown it quickly on both sides, in 4 tablespoons bacon fat heated to "smoking." While the steak is cooking, brown 1/2 cup sliced onions and 1/2 cup of shredded green peppers in 3 tablespoons of fat heated in another frying pan. It will take about 7 minutes for the steak and vegetables to cook. Then place the steak on a heated platter, cover with the onion-pepper mixture, sprinkle with 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/2 teaspoon paprika, and surround with corn on the cob which has boiled 10 minutes in water to cover.

Rhubarb Pie Is
A Summer Treat

One of summer's treats is rhubarb pie—delicious, tart rhubarb pie made from fresh-cut rhubarb. This week's recipe calls for these ingredients: two cups fresh rhubarb cut in half-inch pieces, one cup sugar, one egg and two tablespoons flour.

Line pie tin with a good plain pastry, put the pieces of rhubarb in the unbaked shell, and add to it the sugar, flour and egg that have been mixed together. Put on a perforated upper crust and bake in hot oven for 10 minutes. Then reduce the baking (takes about twenty-five minutes more.)

WIFE PRESERVERS

To avoid hard frozen pieces of fruit in fresh fruit ice cream, crush fruit first, then let it stand awhile with sugar before adding the fruit to the cream mixture.

Centerpiece to Corsage

Flower arrangements for the table rank as a summer "must." This setting was novel in that the short-stemmed yellow roses, after serving as a centerpiece, were distributed as corsages for the dinner guests. Flowers and tablecloth should be in color harmony. In this case, the cloth was of peach organdy.

USEFUL SUGGESTIONS
FOR PREPARING FOODS

It is a good idea to have the kitchen table on rollers so you can move it wherever you want or need it.

Parsley can be dried in a very slow oven, cooled, crumbled with the fingers, and stored in a covered jar for future use.

Sliced apples, sweetened and browned in bacon fat, make a delicious topping for browned slices of ham.

Search Continues
For Missing Plane
Near Frostburg

Mrs. Earl Waltz Seeks Information of Persons Who Last Saw Airplane

FROSTBURG, Md., July 25 — Mrs. Earl Waltz, 3991 Windsor Road, Cleveland, Ohio, wife of one of the two men missing since Saturday, May 17, when the airplane in which they were riding from Washington to Cleveland, failed to return, was here this week, visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rank, Borden Shaft. She was accompanied by her young son and daughter, and Mr. Waltz's stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman. The purpose of the visit was to secure information from Mrs. Rank, one of the last persons to see the plane on the fatal day of its disappearance.

Mrs. Rank, together with George Layman, a youth, and George Switzer, a Celenese employee, were standing in front of the Rank residence about 3:30 p. m., May 17, when a sudden wind storm came up. They took refuge on the porch of the Rank home to avoid the wind and noticed a plane passing low over an apple tree in the front yard of the residence. After flying north-east for a short distance, the plane turned direct north and flew low over Big Savage Mountain.

Noted Number on Plane

The plane flew so low that young Layman could distinguish the number, N. C. 18689. He made a notation of the number and later learned that it was the number of the missing plane, a four passenger, 145 H. P. Warner-Fairchild monoplane with a blue fuselage and rudder and yellow wings and elevator. With two occupants, the plane left Washington May 17, 11:17 a. m.

J. Holland Rannels, Romney, W. Va., and James Morton, this city, have been flying over the mountains within a radius of one hundred miles of this city during the past week in an effort to locate traces of the lost plane. They are soliciting the aid of members of the Frostburg Fire Department and others who wish to help, to form a searching party early Sunday morning in the woods in this vicinity. Following a request for aid from CCC boys in Garrett county, wire has been sent to Washington asking permission to form a party to search the Garrett county mountains.

State Police Assist

Members of the Maryland State Police are also assisting in the search. They spent much time this week in company with Morton checking on reports that the plane was seen in various neighboring villages. Their investigation centered around Middletown and the neighboring woods today. Morton said the search will continue and requests that anyone wishing to aid get in touch with him at once.

Mrs. Harden Succumbs

Thomas Hughes

Miss Dorothy Hergott Is Married in Methodist Church

MT. SAVAGE, July 25 — Miss Dorothy Hergott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hergott, and Thomas Hughes, son of Mrs. June Hughes and the late George Hughes, were married at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Methodist church. The Rev. Harris Waters officiated at the ceremony. Mrs. Victor Reed, Bowling Green, was matron of honor and John Crowe, uncle of the bridegroom, was best man.

The bride was attired in a light blue street length dress with eyelid embroidered organza touches and wore dark blue accessories and a corsage of talliesman roses and baby breath. Mrs. Reed wore a beige street ensemble with brown accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Mrs. Hughes is a graduate of St. Patrick's elementary — junior high school and the Mt. Savage high school. Hughes is a graduate of Mt. Savage high school. Both are employed at the Celenese corporation of America.

After the ceremony a dinner for the bridal party was held at the home of the bride's parents. The table centerpiece was a large tiered wedding cake decorated with white roses. Grouped about the cake was a miniature bride and groom.

After a brief wedding trip through Virginia, the couple will reside at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hergott on the State highway.

Carter Is Elected

Joseph Carter, chief of the Mt. Savage Volunteer Fire Company, was elected secretary of the Garrett-Allegany county firemen at a district meeting held last night in Midland.

The Mt. Savage company won first prize of $25 for the most men marching in the parade and second prize of $10 for the hook-up contest. The Bedford band, which marched with the Mt. Savage outfit, was awarded a loving cup for its performance.

Clinic Is Held

315 Tons of Peas
Are Harvested in Grantsville Area

Yield This Year Considered Fair by Packing Company Official

GRANTSVILLE, July 25.—The local branch of the Southern Packing Company, of Baltimore, finished the last of this year's crop of peas last evening. The Grantsville viner, which is located on the Springs road about a mile north of town, operates for crops grown in this community only.

According to Eli D. Tice, manager of the Grantsville branch, approximately 282 acres of peas were harvested this year. This amount when shelled yielded ninety-five tons of early peas and about 220 tons of the late variety. Mr. Tice said he considered the yield this year only "fair." In 1939, the last year the viner operated here, only 130 acres of peas were handled and the yield at that time estimated at eighty tons of early peas and ninety-six tons of the late ones.

The work of cleaning up the premises, storing machinery, etc., was begun this morning and will require several days. Tice said the company expected to paint the buildings throughout before closing it up for the season.

The Southern Packing Company will also handle corn this year, but this crop will not mature until later. It was estimated that slightly less than 100 acres of corn are being grown for the cannery by farmers in this section. The product will not be handled here, however, but will be taken to the cannery at Mt. Lake.

Initials of Man
Found on Turtle

Shell of Reptile Was Marked by Father of Winfred Park

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., July 25.—Winfred Park, Inkerman, caught a turtle this week which bore on its shell the initials of his father, the late Lem Park, and the date, 1901. In addition to his father's initials was the date 1871 and the initials with this date were too dim to decipher. Park cut his own initials on the turtle and the date '41.

The turtle was bright and shiny and apparently in good health and was about six inches long and nearly five inches across. The turtle has been seen about the Park place for the last fifty years, indicating that turtles stay in the same vicinity.

The 1871 date is authentic and proves that the turtle is at least seventy years old.

On Anniversary

Goodwill Fire Company Will Co-operate; Big Parade To Feature

LONACONING, July 25.—To celebrate its eighty-fourth anniversary the Lonaconing City band will hold a street carnival for three days, August 7, 8 and 9. It was announced today by Ervin D. Lewis, general chairman. Goodwill Fire company will co-operate with the band.

A feature parade will be held Friday, August 9, at which time prizes will be awarded as follows:

Senior bands, large and small silver cups for first and second prizes; junior bands, large silver cup award for first prize. Bands will be judged on playing, marching and appearance. Other prizes listed include: Best senior drum corps, large silver cup for first prize and Fire company making best appearance, large silver cup for first prize.

Invitations have been mailed to more than forty organizations, in nearby towns and bordering states. It was especially noted by the chairman that the local organizations, band and firemen, would not compete for any prizes.

Ervin Lewis is being assisted by Henry Connor, Thomas Devlin and Edward Stakem. Alvin Green is acting as secretary and treasurer, while A. S. Dick, will be marshal of the feature parade.

The parade will form at 7 p. m. at the East End Bridge and will be routed over the principal streets of the city. On Wednesday and Thursday, the local band will give street concerts each evening on Main street.

During the last year the local band has been very active and has been awarded a number of large prizes. Some of the prizes won for the best band in line of parade include: "Kee at American Legion convention, Cumberland; Moorefield, W. Va.; Keyser, W. Va.; Veterans of Foreign Wars, Cumberland; State Firemen's convention, Cumberland; and the Mineral County Volunteer Firemen's Association convention, Piedmont, W. Va.

Funds derived from the affair are to be used by the local band to purchase more uniforms, as the band has increased from thirty to forty members, and to add to the equipment.

Garrett County Taxpayers May Organize Soon

Nominating Committee Is Named by Interested Citizens

OAKLAND, Md., July 25.—Definite steps toward the organization of a Garrett County Taxpayers' Association were taken at a meeting here this week when about thirty interested citizens gathered to discuss plans.

Already there are thirteen such organizations in Maryland and four more counties are considering such a step. The organization here will be completed at a meeting next Tuesday in the directors' room of the Garrett National Bank building. A nominating committee has been named including Harvey Gortner, Grantsville; chairman; Adam Richter, Accident; Q. A. Murphy, Friendsville; Arthur Naylor, Oakland; Lester Yutzy, Crellin. They will present suggested names of directors at Tuesday's meeting.

John L. Houkard, Baltimore, director of the Maryland Public Expenditure Council, explained the principles and purposes of the organization and stressed the fact that members pledged themselves not to get involved in political arguments. Donald Kirkley, field representative of the council, was also present.

Other committees were also appointed: By-laws—D. R. Fleming, Dr. W. W. Grant, T. C. Bittinger; to study incorporation—W. R. Offutt, E. Ray Jones; finance—J. P. Treacy, C. E. MacMurray, J. Edward Helbig.

Reall Is Arrested On Forgery Charges

Clifford Reall, eighteen, of the Gorman section, is being held in the county jail on charges of forgery, according to Neil C. Fraley, state's attorney. The youth denies the charge and will be given a hearing before Magistrate H. A. Lorditch in the near future.

Reall is alleged to have forged the names of Phyllis Williams and Anna Sue Harvey, school teachers, to a number of checks. Reall had made most of the checks payable to a "Bill Walters." J. M. Jarboe, bank teller, became suspicious when the young man presented a check for payment and said he would have to call the depositor before the check could be paid. The young man left the bank without waiting for the check. He was arrested later at his home by Corporal Currie and Sheriff J. W. Owens.

Grove Scores His Three-Hundredth Victory

Veteran Twirler Defeats Indians As Mates Rally

"Thrill of Lifetime," Says Lefty—Ball Will Go in Hall of Fame

By STEVE O'LEARY

BOSTON, July 25 (AP)—After staggering momentarily, old Robert Moses Grove recovered today and trundled sturdily into the company of baseball's immortals, achieving the three-hundredth victory of his fabulous major league career as the Boston Red Sox surged from behind to defeat Cleveland's Indians, 10-6.

Twice the Sox had rallied from four-run and two-run handicaps to equalize the count but it remained for Jimmy Fox, who jumped to fame with Grove as a member of the Philadelphia Athletics, to provide the payoff-count which broke Cleveland hearts in the eighth inning.

From then on Old Mose just seemed to his well-worn triumph, which he had been twice denied in two previous attempts to gain the seven-circle hit reached by Grover Cleveland Alexander in the golden twenties.

Thrill of Lifetime
"The thrill of a lifetime! This is it!" grinned Mose as little Dom DiMaggio, who collected Lou Boudreau's home run for the final out, handed him the winning ball in the jubilant Red Sox locker room.

Grove, tired and dripping with sweat after being rushed by police through a mob of screaming fans, said he would send the ball to Cooperstown, N. Y., to be placed in baseball's Hall of Fame.

"Quit now!" Grove almost screamed in answer to a question. "They'll have to cut the uniform off me. I'm going out for another 300. They couldn't be any harder to get than the first 300."

Victory was all the sweeter for the 41-year-old left-hander for in his two previous quests he had seen his teammates fall him, first at the bat as "Bobo" Newsom shut them out in Detroit, 2-0, and then in the field as Johnny Rigney gained an extra inning decision.

But there was none of that today and the Sox batted back after giving the Indians a 4-0 jump in the first three innings while Joe Kraskauskas was holding them, useless.

Williams Knots Count
They got two back in the fourth driving Kraskauskas to the showers in the process, and Ted Williams knotted the count in the fifth with a vicious belt into the right field stands, scoring Lou Finney ahead of him.

Cleveland added a pair in the seventh but the Sox bounced right back in their half to equalize when Jim Tabor whaled one of Mel Harder's offerings into the left field screen with Williams aboard.

Lefty fended the Indians off handsily in the eighth and then Fox put No. 300 in methballs tripling to right center, after DiMaggio and Cronin had walked. Tabor followed with his second homer but that was expensive baggage. The boxscore:

Ol' Man Mose Is Very Much Alive!

AP Feature Service

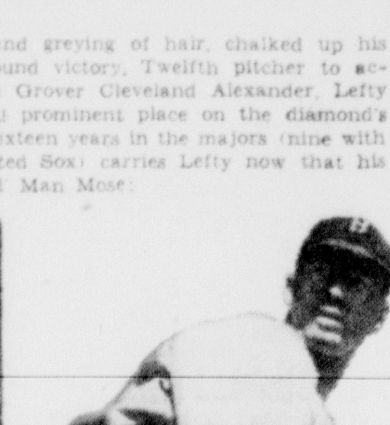

ROBERT MOSES GROVE, 41 and greying of hair, chalked up his three hundredth major league mound victory, Twelfth pitcher to accomplish that feat and first since Grover Cleveland Alexander. Lefty has won himself a permanent and prominent place on the diamond's honor roll. The cunning gained in sixteen years in the majors (nine with the A's, the last seven with the Red Sox) carries Lefty now that his fast ball has lost its fire. Here's Ol' Man Mose:

Lefty looked like this back in the 20's when he was first gaining fame with the Athletics.

When his arm went dead in 1938 things looked bad. But Lefty, with his usual cigar, just smiled.

In 1931, at 31, Grove won 31 contests with Mickey Cochrane catching and Mack Bosling.

Lefty is a popular figure and his two greatest rooters are his son, Bob, Jr., and his wife, Ethel.

Dodger Manager Sticks Out Chin At Old Man Jinx

Durocher Says Everything's All Right, Nothing To Worry About

By DUKE MORAN

PITTSBURGH, July 25 (AP)—Despite a run of hard luck which would make lesser men cry the blues, Lippy Leo Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, stuck out his chin at Old Man Jinx today and declared:

Everybody's worried about the Dodgers but the Dodgers. Everything's all right with this club and we'll be in there until the finish."

Leo's defiance of the jinx should be reassuring to the boys along the Gowanus Canal who have been glooming into their beer because a series of "incidents" has wiped out the Dodgers' once-comfortable lead and put them into a dogfight with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Always A Fighter
Always a fighter himself, Lippy had only scorn for the fainthearts who fear the Dodgers are "done" because:

"Ace Pitchers Whitlow Wyatt and Kirby Higbe have been troubled with a mysterious slump and a cranky appendix, respectively. Doit Camille, the club's pay-off hitter, has gone to a hospital for a check-up, and sundry other evils have befallen the club."

Durocher was particularly incensed at reports that Wyatt's difficulties may stem from recurrence of a sore arm.

"There's nothing the matter with White's arm," roared Leo as he waited the bell for the opening of a five-game set with the Pittsburgh Pirates whom he rates currently as "the hottest team in the National League."

"Higbe is over his attack and is all right now," Leo added. "Camille isn't feeling well—I think a sty on his eye was bothering him, so I ordered the checkup. He should be back in a few days."

"We've lost some time," the peppy manager admitted, "but we haven't let them (the Cardinals) get away from us."

As he started from a hotel for the ball park, Durocher tossed this parting shot over his shoulder: "There, he says, 'is my top man.'"

The Cardinal Challenge
When the Dodgers came roaring in from Havana last March on their way through St. Petersburg, Billy Southworth of the Cardinals was looking on.

"There," someone said, "is a strong, hustling outfit—a good ball club."

That's right, Southworth said, "but so are the Cardinals."

"We are a young club," Billy said, "but if we can get away to a good start and hold up through June and early July we ought to be learning enough to be even better later on."

That's about what Branch Rickey told Larry MacPhail. "If we can stay within two games of your Dodgers by the first of August we'll beat you out," said Branch. "We'll have too much youth left for the stretch."

Youth has something more than good legs and good arms. It has optimism.

Even when the Cardinals recently had dropped five straight—when they were four games back—they were still confident they could win.

They are hard to discourage and those hard to discourage are hard to whip. They believe in themselves and those with that belief are also hard to whip.

Warneke Calls Turn
Before the season opened Mr. Ida's famous son, Lon Warneke, called the turn. The Arkansas Buggy Whip, one of baseball's best, year after year, was talking about his team.

"They say we've got enough punch," Warneke remarked, "but too many young and untired pitchers. I've been watching these kids. I'd like to gamble we get at least three good ones from this crop—maybe four."

He was talking about White, Cooper, Nahem, Krist and Lanier. "I ought to be good for about fifteen myself," Lon added, as he shifted about two pounds of tobacco from one jaw to another. He might have said twenty.

The young ones have made good, but Lon is still the star of the staff. The Old Buggy Whip is still popping in through.

Chandler Keeps Yankees Ramping Through League

Pitches Three-Hit Ball To Shut Out Chicago White Sox, 8-0

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, July 25 (AP)—Spud Chandler pitched three-hit ball today to shut out the Chicago White Sox 8 to 0 and keep the New York Yankees romping through the American League.

It was the Yankees' seventh straight victory, their twenty-fourth in twenty-six games and their thirty-eighth in their last forty-four games for a pace unparalleled in either major league.

Chandler hit the Sox helpless all the way. The only hits he allowed were singles by Luke Appling in the first and ninth innings and a single by George Dickey in the sixth.

In contrast the Bronx Bombers blasted Lefty Ed Smith and Pete Appleton for thirteen hits, including a pair of three-run homers by Tom Henrich and Charley Keller.

Keller started the Yankees' big fourth by singling with one out. Skeeter Webb fumbled a smash by Phil Rizzuto and Spud Chandler singled to fill the sacks. The Johnny Sturm waited out a walk to force in one run; Red Rolfe grounded into a force play at second for another, and Henrich hit his eighteenth homer into the right field stands for three more.

The next inning Smith gave way to a pinch hitter and Appleton took over, holding the Yankees scoreless until the eighth when Joe DiMaggio was safe on an error by Appling. Gordon walked and Keller brought them home with his twenty-fifth circuit cut of the year. This gave him eighty-six runs batted in and a lead of two over DiMaggio in their rivalry for the league lead. Theaters To Give 400 Tickets Today In Metal Drive

Children Will Be Rewarded; Collection Here Nets 5,000 Pounds

Four Cumberland theaters, the Strand, Maryland, Liberty and Garden, are cooperating in the scrap aluminum collection in Cumberland by offering one hundred complimentary tickets each to boys and girls who turn over one or more pounds of the metal to Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce officials today between the hours of 1 and 4 p. m. at the Public Safety building.

John McAlpine, president of the association, sponsoring the three-day campaign, which closes today, said that each boy and girl presenting one pound or more of the scrap metal at the bin at the corner of Frederick and Liberty streets will receive an "Annie Oakley" ticket to be honored at the theaters next week with the show and time of same to be designated when the "comps" are presented.

Bin Contains 5,000 Pounds
Approximately 2,000 pounds of scrap metal was dumped into the bin at the public safety building yesterday after five city trucks accompanied by fifty Boy Scouts canvassed South End, East Side, Narrows Park, LaVale, Elerslie, Corriamville and Oldtown and the National Youth Administration truck worked in the house-to-house canvass in Cressknot which was conducted by the Boy Scout troop of that community.

McAlpine last evening estimated that approximately 5,000 pounds of scrap metal is now in the local bin. The pots, pans and other articles must be crushed by a steam roller before being weighed and loaded on a truck to be sent to Baltimore next Wednesday or Thursday.

An overflow supply of aluminum yesterday forced city carpenters to enlarge the bin at the public safety building. The height of the receptacle was increased from six to nine feet by the carpenters and now the bin contains almost 1,900 cubic feet of aluminum.

Boy Scouts who have participated in the house-to-house canvass in the first two days of the local campaign were treated to milk shakes by the management of the Queen City Dairy. An average of 100 milk shakes a day was prepared for the youngsters.

Scout Hunt In South End
The only untoward incident to mar the two-day campaign occurred in South End yesterday when a woman, who was not in accord with the drive, turned a hose on a group of scouts and in the scramble to keep from getting a soaking, Andrew Bender, a member of Troop 6, of S. S. Peter and Paul church, fell and injured his arm.

Members of the mayor's committee last evening said that the matter will be investigated.

KIFFNER PAINTS SECOND SIGN TO AID HIS COUNTRY

Twenty-four years ago during a Liberty Loan campaign, Jack Kiffner, local sign painter, did his part in the drive by contributing a large sign which read "Stamp Out the Kaiser with Liberty Bonds."

The sign was erected near the old postoffice, now the public safety building, at the corner of Liberty and Frederick streets.

Yesterday Kiffner came through again in the pinch by donating a large sign which was placed on the bin packed with scrap aluminum in front of the public safety building. "The U. S. A. Wants Aluminum—Do Your Part for National Defense and Security" was the wording of the sign.

Kiffner remarked that he was looking through some old records last evening and discovered that it was just twenty-four years ago this month that he placed his Liberty Loan appeal sign at the same spot.

County USO Workers Will Meet on Monday At the City Hall

Thomas F. Conlon, local chairman of the United Service Organizations campaign in Allegany county, has called a meeting of all workers for Monday, July 28, at 8 p. m. in the council chamber of the city hall.

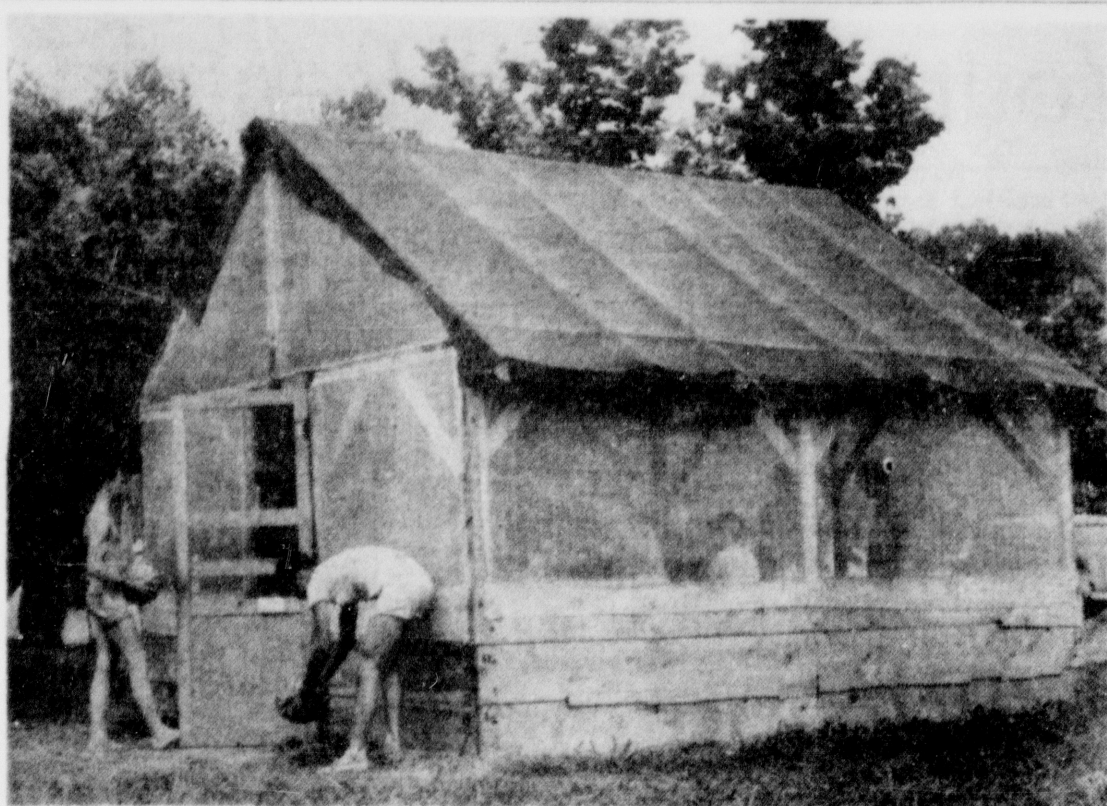

The purpose of the meeting, Conlon said, is to outline plans for the final stages of the campaign which will be concluded on Saturday, August 9. All workers are urged to make reports on collections to date at this meeting.

A total of $2,958 must be raised in the next thirty days if Allegany county is to reach its quota of $11,500. The amount contributed to date is $8,632.

Local Marine Corps Recruiting Station Is Inspected by Major

Major A. E. Simon, of the Pittsburgh, Pa., recruiting district of the United States Marine Corps, inspected the local station yesterday.

Major Simon was here also in conjunction with the traveling recruiting unit of the marine corps. The local station has been given a quota of seven enlistments to meet during the next month.

NEW TYPE DINING SHACK—A portable dining shack, designed by employees of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, of Luke, Md., is being used for the first time this season by Boy Scout troops of Potomac Council at Camp Potomac near Millison's Mill, W. Va. Each shack is fifteen feet long and fourteen feet wide. The roof is of canvas, the four sides are well covered with mosquito netting and there is a screen door at the entrance. The new type buildings can be bolted together quickly due to the fact that each piece of lumber is numbered. Each mess shack contains two eight-foot tables, two ice boxes and storage facilities and is capable of taking care of a party of twenty which is adequate for the average troop. Four buildings of this type are located at the scout camp this season. When this picture was taken Troop No. 32, of Romney was getting ready for a watermelon feed. Eddie Powell is shown totting a melon into the shack and Junior Hamilton is lifting one off the ground.

World War Funds Used To Purchase Yarn for Sweaters

Money Banked 25 Years Ago Is Contributed by Catholic Women

Echoes of the World War days of 1917 and 1918 were revived yesterday with the announcement by the Cumberland Soldiers' Service Committee that a donation of $25 has been received from the Catholic Women's War Relief for the fund being raised to purchase yarn so that local women volunteers may knit sweaters for members of Company G, of Cumberland, now in training at Fort George G. Meade.

The Catholic Women's War Relief functioned about twenty-five years ago and after the World War ended the organization had some money left in a local bank.

Surviving officers of that once prominent organization, Mrs. Henry Glick, treasurer, and Miss Vera Paisley, yesterday decided that a portion of savings be turned over to the Cumberland Soldiers' Service Committee for the purchase of yarn for sweaters to keep the Cumberland soldiers warm this winter.

The late Mrs. Thomas B. Finan was president of the Catholic Women's War Relief when the organization was doing its best to aid Uncle Sam in bygone days.

The minimum wholesale price for thirty pounds of yarn is now $52.50 and those desiring to contribute to the fund are advised to contact USO headquarters, 12 North Centre street.

MT. SAVAGE TYPHOID EPIDEMIC IS ABATING, STATE OFFICIALS SAY

Mt. Savage's typhoid fever epidemic, which has struck thirty persons since the first of June, appear to be abating, state health officials said yesterday.

Dr. Theodore R. Shrop, county health officer, reported to the state health department that he had immunized approximately 1,400 persons and was continuing the immunization clinic day and night, although no new cases have been reported since the closing of a water supply suspected to be the source of infection.

In Baltimore, Dr. C. H. Halliday, the state health department's chief epidemiologist, said he believed the source of infection had been eliminated, although he said some new cases might break out through contact infection.

Dr. Halliday said a department technician, under the supervision of Chief Engineer George L. Hall, was making a thorough survey of all the water supplies in the community. He praised Dr. Shrop's efforts, and said his prompt action probably was responsible for checking the epidemic.

W. Earle Cobey Is Named Appeal Agent Of Board No. 3

Local Draft Board No. 3 announced yesterday that W. Earle Cobey, local attorney, has been named government appeal agent, effective July 17.

He succeeds former Judge Albert A. Doub, who resigned because he was forced to do so "by the present state of his health." Judge Doub said he was "in full sympathy with the defense program."

"It is with reluctance that I give up this interesting work in connection with Board No. 3, whose members have such a discriminating understanding of the problems that come before them for solution," he added.

REPORTING FOR DUTY—Scout Paul Flynn, of Beryl, W. Va., Troop No. 67, is shown at Camp Potomac on the South Branch saluting Scoutmaster John Price in reporting for duty. The home made writing table and bench was put together by the boys at camp. Hanging on the right is the troop's first aid kit. Price and James W. Fazenbaker, assistant scoutmaster, are proud of their troop which is one of the younger units of Potomac Council, having been organized only seven months ago. The Mineral county outfit is sponsored by the Beryl Presbyterian Church. The Beryl and Romney troops will conclude their week's stay at camp today. Three other troops will move in next week. Eleven units comprising approximately 200 boys and leaders will have enjoyed the pleasures of camp life when the 1941 season ends Saturday, August 2. Robert Long, of Romney, West Virginia university student, is swimming instructor for the current season.

Ridgeley Collects Aluminum Today

USO Drive for Mineral County To Open August 1 and Close August 15

Cumberland's neighbor, Ridgeley, will have its drive for aluminum scrap today, according to an announcement by Mayor Paul K. Morgan. Two trucks will be used to haul the aluminum to a central collection point at the town hall.

The collection in Ridgeley will be made by interested citizens and town employees working on the trucks, he said.

Another campaign which Ridgeley will participate in is the raising of $2,000 in Mineral county for the United Service Organizations, who are using the funds to provide recreation for soldiers, sailors, and defense plant workers.

Mayor Morgan attended a meeting in Keyser, W. Va., where preliminary plans for the drive scheduled to start August 1 and continue until August 15 were outlined. A meeting will be held in Ridgeley soon at which time the local drive will be discussed.

Vagrant Serving Jail Sentence May Be Evaded Of Draft, Officers Say

Alfred Thomas Hector, 26, of Boston, Mass., is serving a fifteen-day sentence in the county jail after being convicted on a vagrancy charge by Magistrate Aloysius Monahan, of Mt. Savage. It was learned yesterday.

Hector, who carried a union card of an apprentice mailer, said he formerly worked on the Boston Globe. He was arrested by Trooper Truman Moon, state police, on Route 40 and questioned concerning whether or not he was registered with a draft board.

Hector said he had registered but the officers are under the impression he is evading compliance with the Selective Service provisions and have sent to Boston for information on this angle.

CCC Enrollment To Close Monday

Lack of Interest May Result in Closing of More Forest Camps

Youths planning to register for the next CCC Camp enrollment have until Monday, July 28, to do so, Allegany County Welfare Board officials announced yesterday.

The second call for youths is being issued this month because of the fact that enrollment in the camps have been falling off in recent months. The quota for next Monday is unlimited.

The State Forestry Department is concerned over the lack of interest shown by youths in CCC camp training as the small enrollments have led to the closing of numerous camps for forest workers.

Four youths already have notified Welfare Board officials that they plan to register to go to camp next week. Eleven youths were sent to a Garrett county CCC camp from here in the first call early this month.

Cleveland Taylor Will Have Charge of Services At First Baptist Church

Cleveland H. Taylor this city will have charge of the morning worship services tomorrow at the First Baptist church, 212 Bedford street. His subject will be "Co-operation in Church Work."

Taylor attended a luncheon of the Business Men's Branch of the Pocket Testament League in Baltimore recently, at which time the Rev. Roy Brill, a missionary and one of the survivors of the ship Zam Zam, recently torpedoed by a German raider, spoke. Taylor will relate some of the experiences of the survivors during the evening services.

John Clay Metzger will sing "The Lord's Prayer."

Group Asks Road Repairs

No action was taken yesterday by the county commissioners on a request by residents living along the road from Lonaconing to Dye's cemetery that repairs be made to the thoroughfare.

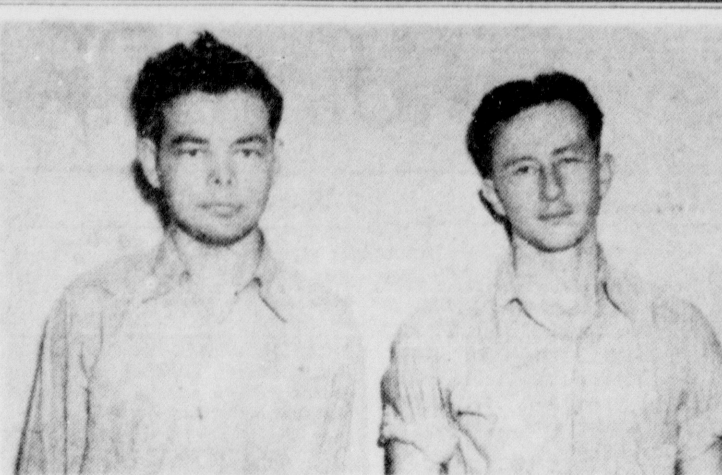

1,200 Pigeons Will Be Exhibited at the Fair; Premiums Total $2,000

Twelve hundred pigeons, 500 chickens and 100 water fowl will be exhibited in the annual Poultry and Pigeon Show at the Cumberland Fair, the week of August 11 to 16, according to Charles A. Smith, manager, of the Pigeon and Poultry department.

Smith said that approximately $2,000 will be offered in premiums.

The deadline for making entries in this show is Thursday, July 31.

John D. Whalley is assistant manager of the show.

Steps Are Taken To Form Women's Voluntary Unit

Fourteen Courses Offered to Members; Bess MacCulloch Is Organizer

Steps are being taken here to establish a unit of the American Women's Voluntary Services, according to announcement made yesterday by Bess T. MacCulloch, local organizer, who resides at 726 Gehardt drive.

The organization was founded April 1, 1940, has headquarters at 1 East Fifty-seventh street, New York city, and comprises an active membership of 35,000 women from Alaska to the Philippine Islands.

Fourteen courses are offered to members, all of whom must be American citizens. Courses include first aid and home hygiene, which are given in cooperation with the Red Cross, child training, motor mechanics, map reading, Morse code and air field dispatcher.

Services of those joining the organization are voluntary.

Miss MacCulloch said that the American Women's Voluntary Services operates in eight different regions and Maryland is the only state without a unit.

Further particulars about the organization may be obtained by contacting Miss MacCulloch, call telephone 2002-R.

The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission's slogan for next week is:

"Drive as you would have the other fellow drive."

A reader of Chatter said yesterday that a chance to ski in Iceland ought to make enlistment in the navy and marines awfully attractive to sportsmen. Chatter, however, is sure most skiers around here would rather do their skiing in Garrett county.

Here's a suggestion for a standing headline: Additional taxes suggested.

Members of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club who several weeks ago heard an interesting address on honey bees will be interested in knowing that a physician at Morris, Ill., extracted 250 honey bee stingers from the arms, legs and face of sixteen-year-old Richard McGill. The bees attacked the youth in an oats field, stinging him into unconsciousness. Latest reports are that the boy is recuperating.

Local Girl Scouts will be interested in knowing that a nationwide photography contest for Girl Scouts has been announced by Girl Scout national headquarters in New York City. One hundred prizes will be awarded. Pictures will be judged on the basis of their excellence in recording Girl Scout out-of-door activities. The contest will close Oct. 1.

Two hundred and twenty-five supervisory nurses representing hospitals in forty-four states have responded to an appeal for volunteers sent out by the Medical and Surgical Relief Committee, 420 Lexington avenue, it was announced by Mrs. Rogers Balcom, executive chairman.

Each of the nurses has undertaken to organize a group of her associates to supplement the work of the committee's nation-wide group of physicians in collecting medical supplies and surgical instruments for shipment overseas.

According to Mrs. Balcom, supplies received at committee headquarters are being depleted more rapidly than they can be replaced because of the constantly-increasing number of appeals from Great Britain and allied countries. It is hoped that the volunteer nurses will help to make up existing shortages, she declared.

Popular Volumes Make Appearance At the Library

"The All-American Front" and "Louisiana Hayride" Added to Stock

A book based on personal travels and experiences and entitled, "The All-American Front," has been added to the stock of the Cumberland Free Public Library, Washington street, according to Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian.

The volume is a realistic, readable and well informed appraisal of the Latin American republics and the author is Duncan Alkman.

"America Faces South," by T. R. Ybarra, is another important and timely work on Latin America. Ybarra, son of a Venezuelan father and a New England mother, has had unusual opportunity to study and understand the cultures of the two Americas. "America Faces South" is a splendid summary of the Good Neighbor Policy and of our stake in Latin America.

"The Inter-American Statistical Yearbook," edited by R. C. Migone and others is a valuable compilation of authoritative information recently published.

Political Detective Story

"Louisiana Hayride" — American Rehearsal for Dictatorship 1928-1940, gives the story of the Huey Long regime. The author, H. T. Kane, is a special writer for the New Orleans Item Tribune. "Louisiana Hayride" is described by critics as "a political detective story—a record of fantastic melodrama—and a native political tragedy."

A splendid biography is "Preacher's Wife" by Ethel Hueston. The "Preacher's Wife" is the author's own mother, Julia Ann Powelson, wife of a Methodist minister in southern Iowa. Mrs. Hueston's narration of her mother's life is a vivid word picture of a remarkable woman and of her large and lively family of eleven children, nine of them girls.

Another noteworthy biography is "The Song Sisters" by Emily Hahn. This contains the life stories of the three great women whose extraordinary careers form a great part of the history of modern China. We meet them as Eling, Chingling and Mayling the little daughters of Charlie Soong, secret revolutionary. We follow them as they become respectively Madame Kung, wife of China's Morgan, Madame Sun Yat Sen, wife of the father of China's revolution, and Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, wife of the Generalissimo.

Contains 220 Illustrations
A most interesting addition is "This Realm, This England," designed and edited by Samuel Chamberlain. "This Realm, This England" is a pictorial story told in more than 220 illustrations including 141 etchings, eight drawings, four wood engravings, three lithographs and sixty-eight photographs. These have been provided to provide graphic portraits of London, and the towns and cities, castles and churches, coast and countryside of England and Scotland.

Other notable new books are:

"Nature Notes," by John Kieran of "Information Please" fame.

"Strange Malady, the Story of Allergy" by Warren T. Vaughan, M. D.

"The Earth Speaks" nature folklore by Princess Atalie, a Cherokee Indian princess.

"What are the Vitamins?" their Source, their Nature, their Purpose and their Effects" by Dr. Walter H. Eddy.

4-H All Stars To Vote Tuesday at Court House

Members of the Allegany County 4-H All Stars will meet Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock at the court house to vote on recommendations which are due at the state office by July 30, William Shumaker, president, announced yesterday.

Decision Reserved In Miner's Appeal On Compensation

Mine Union Contends No Labor Dispute Existed in Stoppage

A decision by the circuit court as to whether or not the Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board erred in withholding unemployment benefits from several thousand Allegany and Garrett county miners following a work stoppage in April will be given in about ten days, Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan said yesterday afternoon after hearing opposing counsel present briefs in the case.

The appeal from the board's ruling was filed by James Cobey Snyder of Garrett county, in his own behalf and on behalf of all other persons similarly situated, against the Board, the Consolidation Coal Company, George's Creek Coal Company, and the George's Creek and Upper Potomac Coal Association after an adverse ruling on benefit claims in May.

"Not a Labor Dispute"

I. Duke Avnet, attorney for the mine union, gave as his principal argument a contention that the evidence does not support the finding by the board that the claimants' unemployment was due to a stoppage of work which existed because of a labor dispute.

"At the time of the expiration of the contract on March 31, 1941, the operators of the Appalachian area, which includes the George's Creek and Upper Potomac Coal Association, were negotiating with the officers of the United Mine Workers in New York City for a new contract."

"Realizing that a new contract would not be negotiated before the old one expired, the operators proposed continuing work under the expired contract while continuing negotiations, the new contract to be effective when signed."

Neither Side Conceded

"Representatives of the miners, however, insisted that the new contract should be retroactive to the date the old one expired. Since neither side would concede the other's viewpoint, the mines closed down April 1," Avnet declared.

"It is clear that where persons want to work and are able to and available for work but where the employer has no work for them, a labor dispute does not exist. Such was the situation in this case," he added.

"A stoppage of work which exists because of a labor dispute implies a strike by the employees or a lock-out by the employer. Was there a strike or a lock-out in the case at hand?" Avnet asked.

"There were no picket lines, no strike call was issued by the union, nor was there any notice from the company of a lock-out, after the old contract expired on March 31 and there was never any real break in negotiations from March 11, 1941, when the conference between the union and operators convened, to April 29, 1941, when an agreement was reached," Avnet said.

Caught Between Operators

Another point brought out by the union counsel was the argument between Northern and Southern operators arising out of their competitive rivalry for the coal market caused by the question over wage differential between the two areas. The miners were caught between these two forces, they contended, and the mine workers should not be penalized because of this argument, it was said.

In closing, Avnet made an impassioned plea for the court to take into consideration the humanitarian aspects of the case and overrule the board on its findings so that thousands of Allegany and Garrett county miners, not to mention shopkeepers and other persons, would benefit from the unemployment compensation law as its enactment intended.

Local Attorney Aids Avnet

Morgan C. Harris, of Cumberland, assisted Avnet in presenting an outline of the facts in the case and Welly K. Hopkins, general counsel for the United Mine Workers, presented a review of rulings of boards in other states as a result of the stoppage.

Attorneys agreed that the sole point at issue in the case is whether the miners were idle because of a labor dispute. The board ruled that such was the case, and that the miners were not entitled to benefits under the state law.

Assistant Attorney-General Zanyvi Krieger, of Baltimore, represents the board, and William A. Gunter, this city, is counsel for the coal company.

Citing regulation No. 8 of the compensation law, Gunter said more than 700 employees of the Consolidation Coal Company left their employment when the union contract expired April 1, and that the "sole purpose of the compensation act" is to provide protection for "men ready and willing to work." He said the company, under the terms of the law, notified the Cumberland office of the state board that the men had left their employment, and that the men then filed claims for compensation. The decision on the claims was left to members of the state board, which ruled May 6 that the men were not entitled to benefits, he said.

Gunter cited that the law entitles claimants to appeal to a state court from an adverse ruling of the board, within ten days, and that the decision of the Circuit Court, if it upholds the board, may be carried to the Court of Appeals.

Facts Not Disputed

Assistant Attorney-General Krieger admitted that "the facts in the case are undisputed."
